Blessed Feasts of the Sacred and Immaculate Hearts!

Some of you have been asking Where is “Sister Anne”? She’s all over the place, and will have several addresses this summer! Lately she’s been living in “decision land”!

– A New Orleans couple sponsored a subscription to DeepL, the world’s best translation program, to hasten the French-to-English translation of the LaSalette documents. The free version allowed me only baby steps, but now we can translate long texts and preserve the formatting. More volunteers have come forward, here in French territory, to help review and refine auto-translated documents.

– No sooner did we have our own subscription to a translation software, than I received an email from a lawyer in Mexico, a devout Catholic and father of four. He is fluent in English and discovered MarianNews and our website. He believes “the Order will take Mexico and Latin America by storm!” He and a friend have committed to start translating video scripts into Spanish. – The LaSalette document will provide critical references for our Constitutions. When I asked for volunteer translators several years ago I was only thinking “French to English.” I should have thought ahead for “French to any language.” So now we are revamping the basic templates to proceed systematically. Decisions, decisions!

– From the first week that Sarah joined me in Wichita last October, I suspected she had a contemplative vocation, not a vocation to an active Order, but I kept quiet and let her come to that discernment herself. During Lent she realized that she would need to apply to a contemplative community Decisions, decisions! In Mary’s month of May, Sarah was interviewed at a Dominican monastery and, while she helps me with computer work this summer, she will be working on a formal application and visiting relatives. I look on the sacrifice of my first novice as a joyous “first fruits offering” and am confident that the Lord will soon send Mary’s new Order a crop of excellent novices including a place to lodge them!

– I will be moving around Louisiana and Mississippi this summer, giving talks here and there. I will lodge with my camera lady to shoot some videos, after I write some scripts to answer the question that I am asked frequently down here in the south. “How does one become a Lay Theotokan!” Maybe you feel called to be one too? Decisions, decisions!

I will keep the contact page updated with my current address as I move around. <https://houseofmaryomd.org/welcome/contact-subscribe>
