

THE OUTING OF

MARY CARBERRY

Exposing the woman behind the secret “visionary”

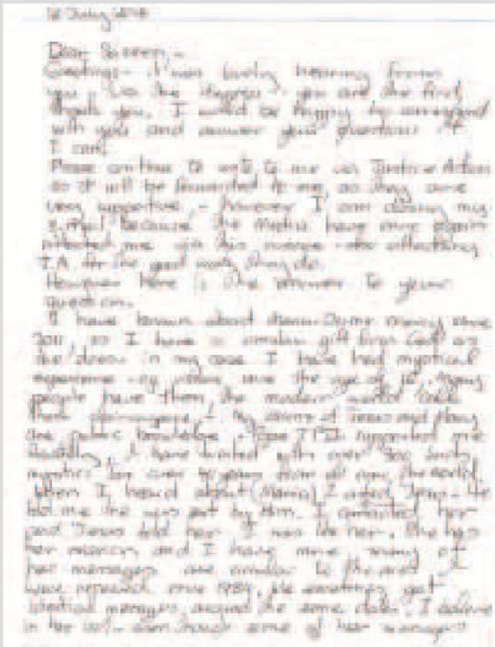

Maria Divine Mercy

‘Maria Divine Mercy’

She claims to be a ‘victim soul,’ the Last Prophet, the Seventh Angel.

Since 2010 she has received almost daily ‘messages’ from ‘Jesus’ and ‘Mary’ who guide her and her ‘remnant’ followers during the transition between the Biblical tribulation and a thousand years of peace.

Dear Serena -
Greetings - I was loving, listening from you via the internet, you and the first thank you, I would be happy to correspond with you and answer your questions if I can.
Please continue to work to see our Justice Action as it will be beneficial to me, as they were once supporters - however I am always very careful because the media have many papers printed out with this message - also collecting T.A. for the good work they do.
However here is the answer to your question.
I have known about Maria Divine Mercy since 2011, so I have a certain gift from God on the floor in my case. I have had mystical experiences my father was the eye of it, many people have them the modern world calls them 'parapsychic'. My vision of Jesus and Mary the public knowledge - since 2011 I experienced the heavenly. I have worked with over 500 lucky numbers for over 20 years from all over the world. When I heard about Maria I asked Jesus - he told me she was not by him. I contacted her and Jesus told her I was the first. She has her mission and I have more many of her messages and similar to the ones I have received since 1984, the messages get identical messages around the same date. I believe in her self - even though some of her messages

Though my name appears as author of this story, the credit belongs to a team of researchers, contributors and editors living in six countries on four continents who sought for more than a year to discover the identity behind the anonymous 'visionary' Maria Divine Mercy, who chose to identify herself only as a European mother and business woman.

This book is dedicated to these seekers of truth, whose names may never be known, who devoted a portion of the lives with no other motive than to serve God and His Church.

Foreword

In early March 2011 a website appeared – The Warning Second Coming - claiming to provide messages directly from Jesus and his Mother, Mary, sent to a woman whose identity was not revealed. The ‘visionary’ used the name Maria Divine Mercy. The website claimed she was a successful European business woman with children.

The website was ‘top notch’ professional -- not likely generated by someone busied with providing for a family while transcribing almost daily messages that spoke of end-time events. The messages allegedly began four months prior to the website's appearance in November 2010. Initially, the site attracted a modest following but was generally unknown in the Catholic community.

Who was this woman of unique sanctity who claimed the titles of last prophet, the Seventh Angel, a victim soul?

There were online rumblings of the identity of the anonymous 'seer' within months of the start of her website.¹ Commenters on discussion forums claimed to know the woman. But what could be proved? No one came forward to say, “I am Maria Divine Mercy.”

Later in 2011, a few months after the 'seer's' website began, she made a strategic move to promote her visions through a telephone interview with Catholic radio station WTMR in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, USA. Were there spoken clues that would lead to the identity of the ‘seer?’ The administrator at MiraculousRosary.blogspot.com transcribed and posted the interview verbatim. It became primary source material assisting the discovery and verdict on the authenticity of the ‘seer.’

Within a year online commentary was exposing the messages' Biblical contradictions and theological errors. Catholic publications wrote of the MDM phenomenon, always addressing the content of the messages, as no one knew the identity of the message-giver.

In 2013 a researcher discovered information that implied fraud: an online electronic business card of a retired Irish dentist claiming ownership of "The Warning Second Coming" website.

The discoverer formed a 'closed' online forum inviting one, who invited another, until a group was gathered from six countries on four continents to determine the identity of the mystery 'seer.' I am a member of that team. Until early November 2013 I followed the 'messages' with interest but was puzzled by the lack of economy in the use of words supposedly spoken by Jesus. Some messages were changed and there was that mention of "castration" to describe a punishment for sinners. Ouch! A Facebook commenter managed to sneak a mention: "Maria Divine Mercy is Mary Carberry." It was deleted within hours. That was the starting point of my own research. Within 24 hours I understood. My own discoveries posted at Facebook pages devoted to open discussion on the 'seer' resulted in an invitation to join the research team.

None of the members of the team has a personal or business relationship with the 'visionary.' The goal was fixed: what can we discover about the identity of the woman who claimed to be the last prophet of all time? Was there a business trail? Were companies formed to sell and profit from the prophetess? Would social media, such as Facebook, provide clues? Did people claim direct contact? Did the 'seer' herself leave a trail of online comments?

Dozens of names were explored; hundreds of web pages were studied. Many false leads narrowed the search. Persistence was rewarded with break-through disclosures, such as the one-photograph-says-it-all [actually two companion photographs] that marked the beginning of the end of the vision enterprise. And there were lots of prayers for the protection of the team - all practicing Catholics - and the success of the search.

By early November 2013, the research team had accumulated enough information to go public, first providing the 'seer's' name to website Reproach of Christ.² Ten days later, MidwayStreet.Wordpress.com was 'live' with the complete narrative-to-date that pointed to the community of Malahide, north of Dublin, Ireland. Much of the content in this small book previously appeared at MidwayStreet and other websites devoted to debunking the ‘visionary.’

This story does not address the theology of the messages. There are websites and printed articles that early-on exposed the doctrinal errors and bizarre claims, even without the benefit of knowing the woman, or man, or persons, or entity behind the ‘messages.’³

Several websites preceded this endeavor that opened the discussion on the truth of the mysterious Maria Divine Mercy. Those forums continue as valuable platforms of discussion.

What follows is the body of evidence developed over more than a year involving thousands of hours of research. It led to places that could not have been dreamed.

Researchers were curious early observers of the messages. True or false? It was ultimately the identity of the ‘visionary,’ exposed here, that sealed the verdict...

...hoax.

Here’s what we discovered.

In the Beginning...

"The Warning is going to take place within a few months now. So prepare all of you. These are the words of Jesus Christ. "

--Maria Divine Mercy, Mother of God forum, June 1, 2011

Since 8 November 2010, a woman identifying herself as Maria Divine Mercy, a 'Catholic messenger from God' and 'Last Prophet,' has claimed more than 1,250 messages from Jesus, the Virgin Mary, God the Father, and the Holy Spirit⁴ posted on the website The Warning Second Coming.

In Central Europe the body of messages is referred to as "The Warning." Social media followers abbreviate the website 'W2C' and the 'seer' as MDM and themselves as MDMMers. The website is slick, professional, colorful, thought provoking. It's everything a website should be to announce: This is serious.

There is no way to count the number who follow these messages. A Swiss priest says more than half of Swiss Catholics have had some contact with the messages. A Nigerian pleads for help for "millions" of Nigerians who follow the messages. An associate of the 'seer' claims 1.3 billion website views. Messages are translated into 28 languages reaching 270 countries.

She has more than 350,000 international Facebook followers and dozens of worldwide Facebook sites. The 'official' Facebook page, Jesus to Mankind, shows an image of a happy Jesus as messages report of cataclysmic global devastation and satanic influences leading to the end times and schismatic separation of her followers from the institutional Church.

MDMers have turned into a cult-like mass of passionate believers who generate plenty of formal reaction from Catholic hierarchy, religious commentators, and theologians. They have reached deep into congregations world-wide. In less than four years, seven bishops and a conference of bishops have issued written public documents condemning the messages.

The messages are both consoling and frightening. They speak of end-time events, of special favors for those who believe in the messages, and harm to those who do not. Pope Francis is the 'false prophet' preceding the anti-Christ who is present in the world, soon to be introduced. God has abandoned the Catholic Church - the "keys" have been taken from "Rome." A "remnant" of Christians, guided by the "Last Prophet" Maria Divine Mercy, will split from the organizational Catholic Church to save the faith and take it into a thousand years of peace. Woe to those who challenge the messages!

The 'messenger' has passionate advocates and adversaries. She has averaged four visions a week for four years that repeat prophetic warnings from a hundred years-worth of seers, and adds lots of her own to the mix, creating a worldwide discussion-frenzy and divisiveness within communities and families split for or against. Her internet site ranks as the finest-looking bunch of Web pages for any prophet since...well...ever. She has marketing skills!

Messages are compiled and printed in three volumes called "The Book of Truth." If there are contradictions between MDM's messages and the Bible, it is because God has a new plan for his remnant followers. Maria Divine Mercy admitted only three things about herself: European business woman with children.⁵

After thousands of hours of research a mosaic formed that led to the doorstep of Mary Carberry, 59,⁶ of Malahide, Dublin County, Ireland, who does business under her maiden name Mary McGovern. She is - or was - married to John Carberry⁷ and has four adult children. Two have worked for her firm, McGovern PR, including her daughter Sarah Carberry, 29, and a 28-year son, a web page designer. At its peak, her twenty-plus-year-old public relations company won international awards for skill in marketing products and ideas.

Yes, she is a European business woman with children. European is Ireland, children are adults, and business was a failure.

Our story of the transformation of the PR girl Mary McGovern into 'visionary' Maria Divine Mercy begins in 2009, a year before her first claimed 'vision.' While McGovern-Carberry continued to show her public side as McGovern PR, she involved her personal side with Joe Coleman, an attention-getting Church-condemned Irish 'psychic' and frequent visitor to the Catholic Shrine of Knock, who himself claimed visions of the Virgin Mary.

The Coleman Year

In 2009 Mary McGovern-Carberry volunteered to do public relations work for Irish 'psychic' Joe Coleman, a pay-per-reading 'medium' who had visions of Mary, Mother of Jesus. The IrishCentral.com reported,

“Before his most recent trips and visitations at Knock, Coleman worked as a healer. He ran spiritual development courses and gave clairvoyant readings before the revenue commissioners started looking into his finances. Though he was charging €40 a session for clairvoyant readings he insisted that he never charged for any kind of information to do with his visions of the Virgin Mary.”

On his website Coleman listed “Mary Carberry” as a prayer meeting contact. Also on that short list with "Mary Carberry" was

"Herzmariens," a name that would be closely associated with the future Maria Divine Mercy.

Carberry, from late 2009 to late 2010, used her "McGovern PR" public relations talent to promote Coleman in broadcast and print media, to assist with writing and publication of his book - "The Message" - and to maintain his website. In 2010 she traveled with him to Medjugorje in Bosnia, the site of claimed appearances of Mary, Mother of Jesus.

On 1 November 2010 Carberry wrote a letter to US Catholic website Reproach of Christ defending Coleman and claiming her own psychic powers: "I am the second visionary. We both see our Lady as well as her beloved son Jesus Christ." She made a prediction later repeated by her MDM persona: "The Tribulation has already started. The second half starts at the end of 2012/beginning of 2013." The correspondence is signed "Mary" and added, "I can't give you my surname unfortunately." [See Appendix for the complete letter.]⁸

Seven days later Maria Divine Mercy – MDM - emerged from anonymity to...more anonymity claiming communication from 'Jesus.' By March 2011 a slickly designed website appeared –The Warning Second Coming – back-dating four months' worth of 'divine' messages. As she wrote in her letter defending Coleman, the new visionary repeats a command from the Virgin Mary that the messages from heaven be published.

PR Tactics

Carberry's marketing skills were noted in the Irish Business and Leadership Journal in December 2009 at the start of her work with Coleman. The article announced a new online service provided by McGovern PR. McGovern [Carberry] remarked how skillful online content can deliver "stickiness by engaging readers on issues they care about...we produce content that stimulates online and offline debate. The key objective is to attract repeat visitors to a company's website."

A year later a woman concealing her identity as Maria Divine Mercy demonstrated an uncanny online ability to "engage readers on issues they care about" with lots of "stickiness" to keep them coming back for more, while claiming near-daily messages from Jesus who tells her she is the last prophet. 'Maria Divine Mercy' is a textbook-study in effective marketing and public relations.

In 2008, McGovern [Carberry] was interviewed by Karen Creed⁹ of the Irish Independent for an article on why nice girls don't get rich.

"To a certain extent this attitude that nice girls can't get rich is true,' says Mary McGovern. Having run her own PR firm for 25 years, the Dublin businesswoman has encountered many women who have amassed great fortunes. 'From the people who have been successful, 80 percent of the time they are pleasant, nice and calm; but get on their wrong side and they are ruthless. There is a ruthless streak in every woman that makes them succeed,' she says...'Nice is dreadful word,' concedes Mary... 'We are fascinated about rich women irrespective of how they generated their wealth,' says Mary. 'The richer they are, the more we idolize them.'"¹⁰

Identity Confirmed?

Websites - such as Maria Divine Mercy: True or False, Miraculous Rosary, The Ruler, Aquiness, Janet-Walton.wix, Uncovering the False Prophet Maria Divine Mercy - provided an open forum for discussion on the merits of the MDM messages. Occasionally someone claimed to know the 'visionary' and wrote privately to website administrators of his or her knowledge. Only two names were offered: Mary Carberry and Mary McGovern.

In June 2013, Joe Coleman, easily accessed through email, was asked: "I have read a lot about Maria Divine Mercy recently. She hides behind her false title and word is out it's Mary Carberry. She is being heavily associated with you. Can you confirm any truth in this?"

Coleman responded, [stet] "Yes this is true, it is all over the internet, I have not seen or heard of her [Mary] in three years now, but I pray for her that she will turn back to God, the devil works in many ways to deceive people and keep them from the truth, any way I am good so far have to try stay in the state of grace, thank you for your concern I send you Mothers love and Blessings, Joe Coleman peace by yours amen.”

[LinkedIn is a social network site for business professionals. Under “special interests” Mary lists “...reading, especially knife-edge thrillers.” Her LinkedIn photo was more than 20 years old.]

In November 2013 a detailed letter written by someone with Carberry family contacts identified Mary Carberry as Maria Divine Mercy. While Carberry's name was mentioned by others as the secret seer, the extent of personal information in the message made a credible case for its authenticity. Researchers contributing to this story know the letter’s author and had subsequent communication with her. The letter writer states that Mary never had 'visions' until she met Joe Coleman.

“Joe Coleman’s infestation definitely spilled onto Mary Carberry and soon she too began to have visions. In fact a number of people associated with this medium Joe Coleman began to have visions including Keith [Henderson] who was killed in a car accident. If people are not in the State of Grace and start associating with mediums, false prophets, well, then it is no surprise that they too become infested with the demonic, which often leads to visions, prophecies etc., but they are not from God. They are totally FALSE.”

Can we confirm MDM's identity from sources other than Coleman and those who claim to know her?

Is Mary McGovern-Carberry – the international marketing/public relations award-winner – the real Maria Divine Mercy? Or a ‘front’ concealing one or more other entities? It gets better.

The Land O'Seers

Joe Coleman is among several current Irish 'seers' who are proven frauds or remain 'suspect.' Denis O'Leary, who began vision-making in 1988, continues to report on his relationship with the other side. He organizes "Circle of Prayer" groups throughout Ireland, similar to MDM's "crusade of prayer" groups organized throughout the world.

Better known are the visions of Christina Gallagher. In November 2009 London Daily Mail writer Philip Nolan wrote that many claim her to be "the greatest religious con trick ever perpetuated in Ireland." Within 20 years of her first vision, the mother-of-two described as an "unremarkable housewife" went from ordinary to "fabulously wealthy" and the owner of four mansions.

The Irish Sunday World reported that since 2008 Gallagher, with no visible income, resided in a $5.4 million mansion in upper-class coastal Malahide, north of Dublin, population 16,000. This is the same community where Mary Carberry resides.

Just as Gallagher's 'professional' career was ending, 'Maria Divine Mercy's' began.

There were published connections between the names McGovern – the business woman – and Carberry – wife and mother - to confirm they are the same. From the Irish "Independent" on 17 March 2000:

"An e-commerce initiative launched yesterday and aimed at the 44 million Irish-Americans has pulled off a coup by getting the backing of US internet giant AOL. Ireland-usa.com has been set up by a company called CultureLink which is owned by public relations adviser Mary McGovern and her husband John Carberry."¹¹

In August 2010 John and Mary Carberry are pictured as seminar participants in a group photo in a newsletter published by Ireland's Electricity Supply Board, a corporate body controlling and developing Ireland's electricity network.

On 8 December 2009 at the start of Carberry's involvement with Joe Coleman, the Irish Independent reported of a couple about to lose their home for falling behind on payments of their $670,000 mortgage. The Building Society was seeking to re-possess the $1.4 million home.

“[Barrister Ann Lawlor] said John and Mary Carberry, of Muldowney Court, Malahide, Co Dublin, had not kept up monthly repayments of $6,991 for the past 10 months and were in arrears of more than $67,000.” The court denied the repossession.”¹²

The Carberrys financial distress coincided with Mary's volunteer work with Joe Coleman. On 31 October 2009, a few weeks before her home foreclosure court date, Mary Carberry was standing beside Coleman at Ireland's Knock Shrine while he experienced a 'vision' from the Virgin Mary.

Only then she used a different name.

The Four Marys

In 2009 the name Mary Egan was mentioned in association with Joe Coleman. As with many names explored in the hunt for Maria Divine Mercy's identity, Mary Egan was a curious footnote. No additional information could be found.

Simon Creer, a reporter for the London Daily Mail, quotes Egan in an article on a Coleman gathering anticipating an appearance of the Virgin Mary at the Knock Shrine on Halloween, 31 October 2009. He wrote:

“The self-styled visionaries whose claims attracted as many as 15,000 people to the Knock shrine in Mayo at the weekend have said that the Virgin Mary will appear again on December 5. But the latest announcement by Joe Coleman and Keith Henderson has led to disquiet in the Catholic Church, with fears the affair is hijacking one of the country's most holy locations.

"The two men claim that as thousands gathered at the basilica in Knock they received a message from Our Lady which gave a third date on which she would appear.

"Mr Coleman's spokesman Mary Egan said the Virgin Mary confirmed she would appear again in just over a month's time.”

There were other reporters at the event including Geraldine Comiskey from the Sunday World who collected information that appeared two years later in her book Wacky Eire, “weird, wacky, raunchy, shocking, true,” stories of current-day Ireland. She devotes a chapter – “Holy Joe” -- to the antics of Joe Coleman and his encounters at Knock over Halloween 2009 with “twelve thousand screaming pilgrims.”

Comiskey writes,

“And spirits ran high when Joe unleashed an unholy fury on Knock Shrine manager Pat Lavelle, after Mr. Lavelle rubbished Joe’s claims. Coleman grabbed Mr. Lavelle by the coat and shook him – an attack he later admitted on radio. Local photographer Mick McCormack snapped Coleman’s loyal friend and promoter, top PR lady Mary McGovern-Egan, laughing as she watched the bizarre altercation, but for Mr. Lavelle it was further proof that ‘holy Joe’ was not so pious.”

Mary McGovern-Egan? Are Mary Egan and Mary McGovern the same person? Could Joe Coleman confirm whether Mary McGovern also used the name Mary Egan? Coleman, emailed on 11 August 2014, wrote, [grammar corrected]

"It is confusing. In 2009 this lady came along. Never knew her from Adam. She decided to promote me with my work as she knew all the media people out there. She was Mary McGovern. Then she was Mary Egan. Then she was Marie Divine Mercy. So this is where it stopped with me. My life has been turned upside down since. I broke away from her in 2010, the year they barred me from Knock. I have had no contact with this lady since. Hope you understand. Peace be yours. Joe”

Researchers suspect a little different sequence. First she was Mary Egan, a fictitious last name; then she was the PR practitioner Mary McGovern, unable to hide her true identity from Dublin media; then she was Mary Carberry, using her married name; then, a year after this incident, she went 'underground' as Maria Divine Mercy.

What reason would Mary Carberry have to conceal her identity from Coleman and others in his community, except to hide the real reason for assisting Coleman: to gain first hand "apprenticeship" knowledge of a 'psychic' as she prepared a path for her own vision-making.

As noted earlier, on 1 November 2010, Carberry sent an email defending Coleman to the popular Reproach of Christ website addressing world visionaries, identifying her role as Coleman-promoter, and claiming to be a second visionary. She signed the correspondence "Mary--I can't give you my surname unfortunately."

Was it written by Mary Egan? Mary McGovern? Mary Carberry? Mary Divine Mercy? Thanks to the persistence of researchers, we know they are all the same.

After a year with Coleman, 'Maria Divine Mercy' launched a slick website of her own 'messages' stuffed with copy-cat writings from other Church-approved and unapproved visionaries, proclaiming imminent end-time events. Her internship with Coleman was over. She was off to the races riding her own pony.

Getting the story straight

"Those who do know the Truth, but who have changed it in order to suit their own desires, will be reminded that there can only be one Truth."

-- 'Jesus' to MDM, Jan 24, 2014

In good marketing fashion, to promote her 'visionary' persona Mary Carberry participated briefly in an independent forum at the Mother of God website that addressed the then-new Warning Second Coming messages.

She began her forum discourse on 1 June 2011:

"Hello everyone. I am Maria. The European Seer of thewarningsecondcoming.com. I would like to say a few things. These messages are authentic. I did not invent them."

Only ten days later, after other forum participants uniformly panned her messages as ridiculous, she exits the forum writing:

"Your comments make me sad...I will not be visiting the forum again for I have been forbidden [by Jesus] to do so...The next prophecy will be revealed by this Sunday. God bless all of you. I will not bother you again. Maria" [See appendix for her complete forum comments.]

Carberry's comments at the Mother of God forum are noteworthy as rare communication between the anonymous 'visionary' and her public.

Carberry - as Maria Divine Mercy - tells of being directed by "Our Lady" to go to the Marian shrines of Knock in Ireland and Medjugorje in Bosnia/Herzegovina. A keen researcher noted that the timeline was wrong! She did visit these shrines during her apprenticeship with Joe Coleman in August 2010 - months before her first claimed message from Mary, Mother of God, in November 2010. So the claim that she was commanded by the Virgin Mary to visit these sites does not mesh with the later 'official' version printed in the introduction of "The Book of Truth," the collection of 'messages.' More problems getting the story 'straight.' And more evidence that her story was 'made up' as time passed.

Continuing with her forum comments, on 11 June she writes that she is the only "bread winner" in her family, giving the impression that her four children are dependent on her income. But the children are all adults. Where is husband John? He went missing in action sometime in 2010. By a friend's unconfirmed account he was diagnosed with cancer that year. No record of a legal divorce or separation can be found.

Was it really Maria Divine Mercy writing the forum comments? Nothing was known of the 'visionary' in June 2011 other than she was a European mother and "successful" business woman. Her website began three months before. This was the first year of 'vision' business. In her four forum comments she described her religious and personal life exactly as 'Maria Divine Mercy' described it to a radio audience four months later.

Continuing to corral new followers, in October 2011 Carberry arranged an interview with As the Spirit Leads radio WTMR, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, US. It was a decision soon regretted.

During the interview, a frenzied Maria Divine Mercy speaks of being "freaked out" by a talking picture of Jesus at her bedside.¹³ For months prior, she claims to have seen saints "coming out" of statues as a prelude to her assignment as the Last Prophet of all time. After forty-five minutes of questions and answers, Irish listeners identified the mystery woman's English accent as "D4" - Dublin 4 - a term describing an Irish upper-middle class attitude in contrast to the 'plain people.' Within months, 'MDM' requested through her Facebook agents that followers not link or reference the interview. She also requested that the station's website, Blessed Mothers Children, withdraw its podcast.

Radio station staff were advised by their spiritual director, Fr. Neil Buchlein, to have nothing more to do with the Irish 'seer.' The link to the radio interview is no longer visible from the station's website, but can be found through Google search and YouTube. A complete written transcript of the 45-minute interview is found at miraculousrosary.blogspot.com.¹⁴

The following year, 2012, Carberry related a different story than the one told in her radio interview. The introduction to her collection of visions, "The Book of Truth," recalls 'Maria's' discovery that she is an angelic messenger and the last prophet of all time. It is a bizarre amateurish narrative that speaks of sizzling sensations that travel "all the way" from her stomach to her feet, of a bedside drawing of Jesus whose lips move without speaking and a face that changes expression, of powerful urges and electrical surges.

'Maria' is supposed to have transcribed exactly 745 words on a single "old envelope" in a humanly-impossible seven exact minutes¹⁵ in a manner reminiscent of occultist automatic writing. She trembles with shock, tears pour, there's a soothing calmness. She writes that she "would never have the capacity to produce a script like this" — a revealing use of the word "script."

She hides her identity only because Jesus tells her to hide. Yet, he tells her not to run away and to be strong. Although this life-changing "sizzling event" occurs at 3 a.m., there is no mention of waking her husband John, apparently a sound sleeper.

with clearly visible hands, neither wears a wedding ring. He is not in the bed with Mary when she has her 9 November 2010 3 a.m. talking 'Jesus'-picture experience. Some time in 2010, while Mary is offering her professional talent and personal time to 'psychic' Joe Coleman, John became invisible. In her first year of published 'visions' Mary - as MDM - writing at the Mother of God forum refers to herself as the sole provider of her family.^{16]}

By 11 a.m., seven hours after “suddenly” waking up, she “naturally” assumes she is another visionary. Naturally! But “this was not the case.” She is a one-of-a-kind visionary, which is different, an end-time prophet, not chosen but SENT by Jesus to prepare the world for His second coming.

Her prophet-assignment, however, is confined to note-taking. She is not to be seen or heard. She describes herself as an intelligent mother of four who led a busy and fulfilled life, but we learned she has a history of failed businesses and a life lived beyond her means in a $1.4 million home.

A major event occurs in summer 2011. She will be visited by God the Father who is pre-announced by the Holy Spirit who says, “God the Father wishes to communicate with you.” God tells her “why He created the world in the first place,” with no mention of his second or third-place reasons. “It was so He could have a family.” Was God lonely? Did he lack for friends? The cameo appearances of "God the Father" and the "Holy Spirit" are a 'first' in the 2,000-year history of the Catholic Church.

The truth “slowly dawns on her” that the messages are authentic, although she privately hopes they are not, probably to avoid responsibility that goes with being an angel.

The 'official' story continues to confound. Maria “believed in God but she was not devout in the traditional sense.” Is there a non-traditional sense of devout? She has the shock-of-a-lifetime Jesus-picture talking-lip experience on 9 November, but now describes a visit the day before from the Virgin Mary – 8 November. So what was the surprise with Jesus’ visit? And wasn't she already 'seeing' saints pop out of statues the previous year?

The Introduction ends with “We don’t have much time.”

The Matter of 12 Missing Priests and a Crying Old Nun

Did Mary Carberry’s bishop send an exorcist priest to determine authenticity of her claimed messages from heaven?

During her October 2011 radio interview - the one quickly regretted - Carberry says that following her first ‘visions’ in late 2010 she contacted many priests including one sent by Dublin’s Archbishop Diarmuid Martin.

Researchers have identified the Archbishop’s priest as Father John Chisholm, now deceased. Fr. Chisholm, an exorcist, held three doctorate degrees and was believed to have the gift of reading souls. There is no recorded statement from Fr. Chisholm regarding Carberry’s claimed ‘visions.’ However, in her radio interview Carberry says:

“[A] priest brought it [her visions] to the Archbishop’s attention who agreed to investigate the messages and he...this elderly man decided that someone like me couldn’t receive a message from Jesus. I was not a typical visionary and dismissed the messages within a few months.”

“Someone like me...” — meaning a “worldly,” “agnostic,” “high flier,” public relations consultant? We now know that “high flier” meant living above her means and “agnostic” - for her - meant she did not believe in God.

In November 2013 the administrator of a website devoted to addressing the truth of the then-mysterious ‘Maria Divine Mercy’ received an email from someone who knew both Carberry and the priest. She wrote, “Archbishop Martin assigned an Irish exorcist priest to meet her [Carberry] and examine her messages. He told me that he told her that her messages were not from God, that they were utterly FALSE.”

Fr. Chisholm is one of twelve priests Carberry claims she contacted during her first months of vision-making. From the radio broadcast:

“The first thing I did was talk to a priest...[1]...he reluctantly passed me on to another priest [2] who reluctantly passed me on to another one [3]...I had to go through five [+2]...and then on the final priest [6] he broke down, cried and told me he couldn’t do it. The next priest [7] brought it to the Archbishop’s attention [8] who agreed to investigate the messages...This elderly man [9] decided that someone like me couldn’t receive a message from Jesus. I was not a typical visionary...So now, thankfully, I have a spiritual director [10] and I’ve access to two wonderful priests [12] who take my call anytime, any day, any hour.”

Except for Fr. Chisholm, no priest is known to have had direct contact with Carberry or her alternate personality ‘Maria Divine Mercy.’ A fabricated story supports the claim of a calculated scam. Was she lying?

Getting the story ‘straight’ has been a challenge for Carberry and her agents.

There are several ‘tellings’ of her priest associates. In June 2011, her first year as ‘Maria Divine Mercy,’ she sloppily writes at the Mother of God forum [as she wrote it], “I contacted my priest known to me for 20 years the following day and communicate with the various catholic priests with whom i have had to place myself. i was more than willing to have all these messages evaluated by people in the know...”

Two years after Carberry’s radio interview, at a Chicago, Illinois, seminar 6 September 2013, ‘Joseph Gabriel’ - an MDM-approved spokesman¹⁷ - said “Maria could find no priests to back her up...One priest [1] inferred that the messages came from below; and another [2] told her they were absolute rubbish.” Missing: 10 other priests from Carberry’s spoken account and no mention of a “spiritual director.”

‘Gabriel’ did offer his audience an assuring message. From notes taken at the event Gabriel says, “Maria asked a little old nun she found in a chapel to read some of her messages and tell her what she thought of them. The nun read them, and, with a tear running down her cheek, said, “Yes, they are from the Lord.” Thus, in the mind of ‘Gabriel’ we have confirmation that the ‘messages’ are authentic. A still-unidentified “little old nun” said so.

Three months before Chicago, ‘Gabriel’ in St. Louis, Missouri, gave a different count of priests. “She took the messages to five priests initially. The first one [1] told her she was crazy. Maria now had the gift to read souls and Jesus told her to tell the priest that he is refusing the cup I’ve offered him. This made the priest very upset and he threw her out. The second [2] told her the messages didn’t come from above. The third [3] said he’d look at them but couldn’t now as he was so busy. When she came back...he told her he started them, but they were too insane to continue. He told her to go home and stop messing with these messages – to be a good wife to her husband and take care of her family. There were two other rejections [4 and 5]. Maria had no one to turn to. She couldn’t show her family, no friends to share this with, and now the priests of the Catholic Church all were rejecting her!”

[In her broadcast interview, Carberry says that following the first appearance of Jesus, “I rang my best friend the next morning.” So, by her own spoken admission she did have someone to turn to. And it was later the same morning, not the next day, as her ‘Jesus’ visit occurred at 3 a.m.

Again, ‘Gabriel’ assured his St. Louis audience, as he did later in Chicago, that a little old nun “cried for ten minutes” and said the messages were from God. Missing from both ‘Gabriel’ accounts is Carberry’s mention of a spiritual director and the “two wonderful priests” she claims access to “any day, any hour.” In contradiction to Carberry’s own spoken words ‘Gabriel’ says “...the priests of the Catholic Church rejected her.”

Researchers reviewed claims that an East Indian exorcist and world-renowned speaker Father Rufus Pereira had exorcised Mary Carberry in 2012, a month before his death. But Erika Gibello, Fr. Pereira’s secretary, said there was no contact with Carberry, but nonetheless condemned Carberry's 'visions.' She wrote: “All are lies of the evil one.” Her comments:

“We [Gibello and Father Pereira] went to Ireland often to give retreats. We never met that lady [Carberry]. Last time we went to Ireland was in March 2012...We were in Dublin and Athlone too, but Fr Rufus never prayed over that lady nor did he warn her. All these are lies to make it look as if she did not need an exorcism, as she claims she [is] instructed by the Mother of God. All are lies of the evil one.”

In summary, Carberry and her agents claim the 'visionary' of Malahide, Ireland, had in-person contact with many priests who determined the messages were not from God. By their own accounts, the priests said the messages were rubbish, came from below and were utterly false, and that Carberry is “insane” and “crazy.”

Seven Catholic bishops and the Slovakian Conference of Bishops have condemned the 'seer.' But an unidentified little old crying nun said the messages are from God.

The Claim of the Miraculous Curing Cancer

As 'Joseph Gabriel' tours English-speaking nations, he tells the story of the miracle of the disappearing cancer as evidence of Carberry's special relationship with God.

As the story goes, sometime after God the Father first appeared to Maria Divine Mercy in June 2011, she was diagnosed with breast cancer. As transcribed at his 6 September 2013 Chicago seminar, 'Gabriel' tells his audience that a crying God-the-Father asked Maria, “What can we do to save souls?” She responds by accepting the role of a "victim soul" who suffers for the benefit of others. 'Gabriel' calls this an "irreversible contract."

A seminar audience member noted 'Gabriel's' remarks:

“Shortly after that, Maria was diagnosed with cancer. After a mastectomy was booked, the Lord came to her and told her that she was cancer-free, but if she had both breasts removed she could save hundreds of thousands of souls. The thought of saving so many souls caused Maria to smile as she went into the operating room.”¹⁸

This ‘miracle’ would confirm Maria's special place as an ‘angelic messenger’ and authenticate the divine origin of her messages. It would...if it could. But it can’t.

Aside from 'Gabriel's' storytelling, no other mention is made of this historic event in the life of the woman who claims to be the ‘Last Prophet.’ During her October 2011 radio interview, Maria makes no mention of her physically-unexplainable life-saving cure. A strange omission. ‘Gabriel’ offers his audiences no evidence verifying the ‘miracle.’ And for good reason.

The miracle never happened. No documentation. No witness statements. No doctor has come forward to say, “I amputated non-cancerous body parts.” It's a vain prospect, but did she have cosmetic reconstruction or did she retain the sad scars of her 'sacrifice'? If Maria could save “hundreds of thousands of souls” by having her breasts removed, might she save hundreds of thousands more by having a healthy leg or arm removed?

Many Catholics believe in the value of mortification – voluntary physical suffering to compensate for the consequence of sin, a sharing in the Cross of Christ. There is no Catholic belief in the value of mutilation, the destruction of the body considered a temple of Christ. Would Jesus really tell Mary Carberry he would be pleased if – with a painless operation – she had healthy body parts removed? What, then, was the point of the ‘miraculous cure’?

With her voluntary mastectomy, there is no evidence that Jesus was there at all. The Catechism of the Catholic Church addresses the issue:

“Except when performed for strictly therapeutic medical reasons, directly intended amputations, mutilations, and sterilizations performed on innocent persons are against moral law.”

Did Jesus err by suggesting to Carberry that removing healthy body parts would save souls? Catholic researcher David Moorcroft examines the nonsense of Carberry’s ‘cancer cure’ story against Catholic moral teaching and concludes, “Evidence? None. Credibility? Contemptible.”

Applying Catholic doctrine, he writes that the ability to ‘see’ God the Father – the Beatific Vision – is reserved for saints in heaven. No mortal eyes, not even Mary Carberry’s, could bear that glory. How could God-the-Father cry? He has no body. Carberry says God-the-Father asks, “What can we do to save souls?” Does he require Carberry’s help to accomplish this? That was the reason God sent his Son, Jesus. This claim by Carberry would seem to make her co-redeemer.

Moorcroft continues that the notion that a miracle took place is meaningless without investigation. The claim must be tested against available evidence to confirm a miraculous event. In this case, there is no evidence whatsoever. Carberry is a ‘victim soul’? This calling, like any other in the Church, is wholly voluntary. Any soul may seek dispensation of that freely-chosen state if she or he is unwilling or unable to bear the burden. God does not make contracts. It is the devil that makes ‘pacts.’ Only an angel could call itself ‘an angelic messenger,’ writes Moorcroft.

And Mary Carberry is no angel.

Facebook Follies

Maria Divine Mercy’s website contains no personal communication from ‘Maria.’ But she does occasionally send personal emails to her Facebook administrators and allies.

The ‘official’ MDM Facebook page is Jesus to Mankind, a carefully monitored and censored discussion forum where followers can exchange observations and discussion. Essentially, it is a companion page to The Warning Second Coming website. There are dozens of additional Facebook pages where geographically-local followers establish prayers groups and gain a sense of community. They are also monitored by trusted administrators. The most influential of ‘MDM’s’ Facebook allies is a retired Canadian engineer who in early 2014 ‘flipped’ on his Irish mentor.¹⁹ On 17 February 2014 the Canadian posted a “Public Statement:”

"...in light of recent claims and in the interest of truth and justice...in answer to...questions and request for explanation as to what is going on...here is some background."

Fond of 'shouting' with capitalized words and sentences, he explains much of the MDM Facebook history. He writes, "These [Facebook] groups were set up by me as self-regulating discussion groups at the end of 2011" [Maria's first year of business]. He converted a group of pages to promote the MDM messages. "Mary had nothing to do with these [Facebook groups] until much later." He wrote "Mary"-- not "Maria."

In February 2013, as a result of contact with 'Maria,' he offered her his King of Mercy pages, set up as self-regulated independent groups. Maria asked that the page names change to "Jesus to Mankind" and that her representatives administer the groups "for security."

Now in control of a new group pages she imposed demands on content and exercised control on discussion, eliminating any criticism and any mention of other 'seers.' No more "self regulation."

Her demands "became intolerable." The Canadian refused to comply and removed Maria - the angel and last prophet - as a participant on his pages. The battle began! He wrote, "If Maria is on the Facebook pages - as apparently she is - I'm not sure under what name - she sure has a lot of time on her hands!"

Maria's team countered by removing the Canadian from the Jesus to Mankind groups - more than 30 of them. "As a result," the Canadian writes, "MDM now has full control of all the JTM groups." He said Mary sent him emails "full of accusations and distortions..."

"I simply cannot allow a visionary to suppress all dissent and to have complete control over all the groups," he explains. "...the groups should be independent so that this mission does not degenerate into a CULT!"

He continues, "She claims she has been given the 'gift of reading souls'...well if she has, it is not yet perfect, because she certainly hasn't done a good job reading mine!"

"She claims to be living in the Divine Will, and that every action she takes is inspired by God [yet] she has no discernment as to what the messages really mean...she is a sinful human being just like the rest of us and has made a lot of imperfect decisions...her most recent words and actions do not show the fruits of the spirit...

"There must be accountability, both financially and otherwise!" In addition to Maria's ability to "read souls," he reports that she added a new attribute: she said she had no free will.

On an MDM-operated Facebook page, a 'Maria' ally countered that the Canadian made it clear that he does not want direction from a woman. She writes, "He said that Maria is a silly, over reactive woman who should stick to her prophecies...[he] said that he views himself as the general of the remnant army and that he was not going to have some woman dress him down in front of the troops!...[Maria] said she will take care of this...all of it."

Does this sound like dialogue expected from those in contact with a saint-in-our-midst? Does this irreverent discourse, from those in direct contact with the "angel" Maria, add to her credibility as a God-sent messenger?

The battle of words went on for months. Back and forth. Accusations. Threats. Territorial grabs.

The Canadian admitted meeting 'Maria' on her US tour with 'Joseph Gabriel' and confirmed that she is Mary Carberry. He wrote, "I can no longer support the messages unconditionally," and suggested the possibility that "the visionary has fallen from grace or lapsed due to pride, power, greed, and is now false" and that her messages "are preternatural, not of God, designed to cause infighting, chaos and a premature schism."

On 11 March he wrote, "If the messages were initially authentic, there is more and more evidence that Mary C. is behaving like a frantic ruthless businesswoman, and may be doing it for fame and financial gain and/or she is being deceived...and as a result attacking a legitimate Vicar of Christ."

Then another 'turn-around.' A month later the Canadian was back deep inside the camp of dwindling MDM advocates re-supporting her mission that - by mid 2014 - was characterized by unstable meanderings and irrational discourse.

The openness of the format of online social media led to additional embarrassing discoveries - embarrassing for the MDM team. An internet blogger uncovered a Facebook user profile named “Maria Divine Mercy.” Though this user profile has no content, it adds another feather to the body of evidence that this is a scam.

It shows a 'join' date of June 2, 2010. The date was hidden by the user not long after it was discovered. This means "Maria Divine Mercy" joined Facebook five months before the first claimed message of 'Jesus' to the Irish lady!²⁰

The new information supports the contention that the MDM enterprise was planned months ahead of the 'official' start of the story. Was this a mapped-out hoax by the PR professional and possibly other financiers and 'handlers'?

Turning on the 'Likes'

A study of the main Maria Divine Mercy Facebook page – Jesus to Mankind – exposes major misrepresentation in the number of “likes” registered by viewers. By “liking” a Facebook page viewers signal friends of their interest. It is a measure of popularity.

By December 2014 Jesus to Mankind had registered more than 350,000 ‘likes,’ more than ten times the number registered a year before. The increase was sudden during 2014, the year when major internet-visible supporters were abandoning the sinking ship as her identity gained exposure.

The number is more than double the ‘likes’ registered by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth. Could Mary Carberry be more popular than the Queen of England? Or is she cheating the system? Investigators believe that the MDM enterprise is aggressively boosting numbers to misrepresent interest in the Dublin deceiver. Several websites offer ‘likes’ for sale. An indication that Mary Carberry utilized these purchases is revealed by study of age groups and countries of origin. Facebook customarily provides that data.²¹

Facebook data reports Queen Elizabeth is most popular in the city of London. Believable. In contrast, although MDM followers commenting at her 'Jesus to Mankind' Facebook pages and crusade prayer groups are fluent in English, Facebook tells us that MDM is most popular in Ho Chi Minh City in Communist-controlled Vietnam! Not so believable.

The age group of 'likers' also implies fraud. Facebook tells us – based on the origin of 'likes' – that MDM's most popular age group is under 24 years old. MDM Facebook pages list a majority of people who are more mature in age and have jobs, children and grandchildren. The 'JTM United Youth Group' page - for MDM followers in their early twenties or younger - has only 662 members in contrast to the supposed 394,090 total current 'likes' on the main JTM page. This would mean that less than .2% - two tenths of one percent - of 'likers' are in their early twenties or younger, hardly a "popular" age group for MDM followers.

'Secret Prophet' emerges

As noted, Carberry joined Facebook as Maria Divine Mercy in June 2010, five months before her first 'vision.' The 'seer' may have considered another name: Secret Prophet.

Registration data for the MDM websites conceals the name of the registrant so offers no clue of ownership. To lead sleuths astray with data easily discoverable, Carberry stored her website files on a server near Cologne, Germany, supporting the description of her as a European business woman. But searches for alternative website names revealed something different.

When website names are registered often variations of the name are also registered, so if the website name is misspelled, it will still reach the desired destination. So a website ending in “.com” might also be registered as “.co”.

A registration filed in February 2012 was found for “thewarningsecondcoming.co” – no “m”. The registrant name and organization are listed as “The Secret Prophet” with a Galway, Ireland, address. The contact email is the same used by Carberry for the MDM enterprise: info@thewarningsecondcoming.com. The “.co” addresses links directly to the “.com” MDM website.

Previously, the “.co” address was registered a year before as was the “.com” website – March 6, 2011 – at a server in Hurth, Germany – the original server for all the MDM websites.

The registrant for web name variations of the "The Book of Truth" is again "The Secret Prophet." No information can be found on the contact name, "Francis Norce." Correspondence to his email address is bounced back: unreachable.

An early MDM 'message' from 'Jesus' referenced a "secret prophet." On 12 November 2010 - the month the MDM visions began - 'Jesus' writes:

“My daughter, you can publish this ["The Book of Truth" containing the messages] ‘in conversation with the secret prophet.’” [Single quotes are in the original message.]

There is no other reference to “the Secret Prophet” anywhere in more than 1,250 messages that followed. No mention in Carberry's radio interview. No mention by her promoter 'Joseph Gabriel.'

Who is the Secret Prophet? Researchers weighed the possibilities: There is no “secret prophet.” The reference implies that Carberry was not alone; that she had earthly guidance from a God-ally that really isn't there. Or perhaps there is a 'hidden hand' to the MDM enterprise. The story's big surprises were still ahead of us.

The Business Links

"I give the world the Book of Truth...I give you, My daughter, the sole authority to decide how it is to be translated, distributed and published to protect this Work. Everything regarding the publication of these Messages must have your personal approval."

--'Jesus' to Maria Divine Mercy

In November 2010, the first month of 'visions,' Carberry's 'Jesus' commanded that 'His' messages be published giving Carberry sole authority to determine translation and distribution.

Almost two years later the MDM website reported:

Book of Truth finally gets published

Today, August 15 2012 is a very special day. Finally after almost a year of trying to find a publisher we have finally produced the first volume of the Book of Truth in English. The second Volume is due in September. Five other languages will be available within the next month on this site with a further five following. We will have all major languages available by Christmas.²²

Later that month the MDM website announced that Coma Books was selected as the "official publisher" of the 'messages' and added a statement from Coma Books representative 'Victoria Robinson' that

"All orders received up to August 28, 2012, have all been despatched [stet] covering every destination."

'Publisher' Coma Books has one product: the MDM line of books that consists of three volumes of messages - "The Book of Truth" - and one book of prayers, and their subsequent translations. To assure the company's 'lock' on income from sales, Coma Books copyrights content. 'Jesus' speaks to the world, but the publisher claims 'His' words as its own intellectual property.²³

There is additional legal language protecting publication of the messages:

"In no event is anyone permitted to publish, distribute or otherwise reproduce in any format any of the content or copies of the content that appears on The Warning Second Coming web site."

The MDM website claims books are shipped to 51 countries in six languages, most prominently in English and German. Books are printed 'on demand' - they are printed after payment is received.

Who is Coma Books?²⁴ There was no record of the 'publishing company' in Ireland or the United Kingdom in mid August 2012 - date of first printing and distribution of "the Book of Truth." Ireland's Companies Registration Office reports that Irish company Trumpet Publishing registered the business name "Coma Books" in February 2013. The paperwork is signed by Brefini Cully as director of Trumpet. So "Coma Books" was listed as publisher in printed copies of "The Book of Truth" about six months before it was a legal Irish business.

It took another nine months for Trumpet Publishing to report "Coma Books" as a "May Trade As" name in formal filings, following disclosures by online bloggers of links connecting Mary Carberry to the business side of 'Maria Divine Mercy'.²⁵ The address-of-record for Coma Books and Trumpet Publishing Ltd is Harcourt Centre, Harcourt Street, Dublin - as is the MDM website TheWarningSecondComing.²⁶

Trumpet Publishing Ltd. - that now claims the Coma Books name - was incorporated by Breffni Cully and Sarah Carberry [majority interest] on 6 June 2012.²⁷ Sarah is Mary Carberry's daughter. Mary McGovern-Carberry is now connected through her daughter and shared address to the business operation of the 'Maria Divine Mercy' enterprise.²⁸

Coma Books contracted with Magento E-commerce, an eBay company, to process payment and shipping from online book sales as Coma has no staff. The address on Harcourt Street was purchased from Regus, a worldwide provider of 'virtual' offices - a 'mail drop.' The Trumpet/Coma Books publishing operation for MDM's collection of 'visions' was always an 'inside job.' It was never a 'contracted' entity separate from the MDM team.

Here's the sequence:

- * 6 June 2012: Trumpet Publishing Ltd incorporated by Breffni Cully and 'MDM' daughter Sarah Carberry
- * August 2012: Non-existent "Coma Books" 'publishes' Book of Truth
- * February 2013: Coma Books registered as a business name of Trumpet Publishing by "Brefini" Cully
- * Early November 2013: MDM business links exposed by bloggers
- * Late November 2013: Trumpet Publishing registers Coma Books as "may trade as" name

After two-and-a-half years [as of the publication date of this book] Trumpet Publishing [Coma Books] has never reported income. Is anyone claiming revenue from book sales? Will cash sales of books sold at 'Joseph Gabriel's' seminars be reported?

By late 2014 the MDM website announced that "The Book of Truth" was "out of print." Actually, they were never "in print." The Coma Books website identifies the company as a "print-on-demand" operation. There was no stockpile of books waiting for a home. Did Carberry come to appreciate that there is no money made in book sales? The business was shifting to more profitable areas.

A 'Breffni' by any other name

A blogger has identified the co-director of Trumpet Publishing Ltd., Breffni Cully, as the same 'Joseph Gabriel' who conducted and spoke at MDM workshops in Australia, Canada and the US during 2013,²⁹ while associates made cash-only book sales. The camera-shy Cully - recording devices and photos were forbidden from workshops - has reason to hide his real name that would connect him as owner and profit-maker of the Maria Divine Mercy 'messages.'

A photograph of 'Gabriel' taken at a Chicago seminar in 2013 was matched with a photograph of Breffni Cully posted on a relative's Facebook page. He wears the same tie in both photos!

During a 2013 US seminar, Cully as 'Gabriel' described himself as a "good person" and fallen-away Catholic who retired as a dentist in 2008. He says he was attending a wedding in 2012 when a relative gave him a manuscript of Maria Divine Mercy's messages requesting help to get the messages printed. He had a physical reaction reading the messages. "His heart was pounding!" A meeting was arranged with 'Maria' and 'Gabriel' in a hotel room where Cully offered, "How can I help with this mission?" His assignment: get the messages published.

Cully may own the entire visionary enterprise. On his "vCard" – an electronically-traded business card – he identifies his personal company name as "The Warning Second Coming," the name used for MDM's website.

In January 2013 Sarah relinquished her co-ownership of Trumpet Publishing to Heinrich Martin Roth, 70,³⁰ of Cologne, Germany. Roth already operated German-language online book sales for the 'visionary messages' of MDM.

New German business partner Martin Roth - who often anglicizes his name by dropping "Heinrich" - has 'history' with Mary Carberry. For months, hundreds of pieces of information 'crumbs' were gathered as an image formed revealing the mysterious Maria Divine Mercy.

Among the crumbs were ten names on psychic Joe Coleman's list of contacts for a summer 2012 prayer meeting that included Mary Carberry and "Herzmariens."

Herzmariens is a German prayer website formed in 2003 that promotes 'visionaries.' It means "heart of Mary." It is also the pen name of the website creator – the sales agent and translator of the German edition of the visionary-in-hiding's three-volume book of 'messages' - Heinrich Martin Roth! Did Roth not know that 'Maria Divine Mercy' was his prayer partner at Coleman prayer meetings?

In November 2014 Roth closed his popular website - herzmariens.de - to avoid conflict with his work promoting MDM. The content was transferred to a new Swiss website - herzmariens.ch - maintained by Roth's assistant Patricia. Patricia began assisting Roth in early 2014 and handled arrangements for prayer meetings as well as contributing her own commentary on Roth's website that included her mother's 'visions' from an angel called Leonidas.³¹ The old herzmariens.de website also linked to another 'visionary' called Mary of the Divine Preparation of Hearts, a married ex-stewardess and mother of two children who lived in Spain.

The nobility of the MDM enterprise, often advanced by followers, is that no donations are solicited. From the 'official' website:

"Maria Divine Mercy does not and will never seek donations. No website or person is permitted to request donations on behalf of Maria Divine Mercy period."

But that was not always true. During the first year of operation the 'official' website contained a plea for donations to assist promotion of the messages. This is from the October 2011 'official' MDM website:

"While this work will never be used for monetary gain or profit, people are asked to make a tiny donation from time to time to cover our costs which would be greatly appreciated. If you are downloading the eBook we would urge you to make a nominal donation. God Bless You. Admin Team for The Warning Second Coming website."³²

Visa, MasterCard, Discover Card, and American Express accepted.

The Face That Sank the Ship

Photos of 'Joseph Gabriel' taken at the 2013 Chicago MDM seminar match Breffni Cully attending an Irish wedding as posted on a relative's Facebook page. He wears the same tie on both occasions. His German business partner would later claim that 'Joseph Gabriel' is Cully's middle name and therefore no deception was intended, thus admitting that the two names belong to the same person. But 'Joseph' or 'Gabriel' or 'Joseph Gabriel' does not show up on any of Cully's MDM-related business paperwork.

The Chicago photo-taker was reprimanded for taking photos, which were forbidden in the room, a consistent request at all the 'Joseph Gabriel' seminars that promote "messages from Jesus for all mankind."

Cully traveled with the actual 'new age' drawing of 'Jesus' that communicates messages to the "angel" Mary Carberry.

Breakthrough

By November 2013 researchers had enough material to establish a profit-making relationship linking public relations practitioner Mary McGovern-Carberry and the made-up 'visionary' Maria Divine Mercy.

There were several 'break-through' discoveries. Identifying 'Joseph Gabriel' as business entrepreneur Breffni Cully was one. Another was deep inside incorporation papers for Cully and Roth's second venture associated with sales of 'Maria Divine Mercy' merchandise: Merdel Limited.

Within days of Cully and Roth filing Articles of Incorporation for Merdel on 18 December 2013, researchers were reviewing the document for its value. Breffni Cully and Martin Roth share equal ownership in the company whose purpose is "to purchase, manufacture and retail religious medals..." The company's address is different than Trumpet Publishing: The Crescent Building, Northwood Park, Santry, Dublin Airport - another 'virtual' office from Regus.

On page 17 researchers found the 'smoking gun' that placed PR girl Mary McGovern-Carberry, aka 'Maria Divine Mercy,' in the same room with owners of the MDM business. "Mary McGovern, Consultant PR" signs as a witness to the signatures of Cully and Roth!

In coming months the MDM venture would add two more companies and another doing-business-as name. In total, by the end of 2014 Mary Carberry and her business associates claimed four companies, each with a different physical location that contained no staff, no furniture, no files. They are 'mail drops' purchased for $110 a month from Regus, a supplier of 'false front' offices.

The signature page in Merdel Ltd.'s Articles of Incorporation places Mary McGovern in the same room with promoters of Maria Divine Mercy.

False Fronts

The MDM vision-making enterprise has no physical office. It operates out of the Malahide, Ireland, home of the vision-maker, Mary Carberry. All the MDM businesses use addresses rented from Regus, a supplier of 'virtual' offices, for about $110 a month. No staff, no files, no desks.

Both the Harcourt Centre and Crescent Building addresses are among four addresses purchasable from Regus in the Dublin area. The Harcourt address is used as mailing addresses for The Warning Second Coming and Trumpet Publishing/Coma Books, sellers of "The Book of Truth." The Crescent Building near the Dublin airport is used for Merdel Ltd, formed in December 2013 to sell medals promoted by Maria Divine Mercy.

Earlier in February, the MDM business began promoting sales of medals and scapulars under the name Salus Gifts using a London address, another Regus 'mail drop.'

More recently, Mary McGovern-Carberry filed notice changing her resident address-of-record with her company Future Media to another 'mail drop' address on Pembroke Street, Dublin, an address previously used for "McGovern PR." The Future Media address-of-record was also changed from Carberry's home in Malahide to Pembroke.

In late 2014 the MDM team added two United Kingdom-based companies also using 'virtual' offices.

Roth, the sole owner/director of the UK companies reported a personal address in London that is also a 'mail drop.'

Preparing Trinket Sales

Through 2014 more evidence emerged that 'Maria Divine Mercy' was a calculated money-making, ego-building invention conceived a year before financially-destitute Mary Carberry's first 'vision' in November 2010.

On 18 July 2013 MDM claimed a vision from the Virgin Mary commanding that a medal be struck - a "Medal of Salvation" - showing a crown of thorns above her head with crossed swords on the back, available in bulk and "freely distributed." The 'Virgin Mary' commanded that every person in the world be given a medal.

A San Diego, California, graphic artist designed the medal delayed by redesigns and mis-mintings. This is the same graphic artist who designed the Seal of the Living God, a sheet of paper containing a special prayer and red-colored 'seal' that, when displayed, assures deliverance to heaven.³³ According to MDM's 'visions,' wearing the medal offers the same gift of salvation – the assurance of eternal life in paradise.

On 18 October 2013, the MDM/Carberry group registered the website salusgifts.com with Network Solutions in Pennsylvania, US. There was no record of Salus Gifts as a registered business name or as a "may trade as" name of any incorporated company in the United States, the United Kingdom or Ireland. For tax purposes, it doesn't exist.

The Salus Gifts website went "live" in early February 2014 claiming to be "exclusive global distributor" of MDM medals and scapulars. Salus was UK-based and published a London address, another mail drop purchased from Regus, a provider of pretend offices.

Salus Gifts assured customers that medals would be available to every country from Salus and its unidentified "authorized resellers." Medals would be sold in lots of 25, 50, 100, and 200. "Larger orders are available on request." The site claimed "exclusive" property and trademark rights to the terms "Medal of Salvation" and "Seal of the Living God Scapular." Emails sent to the contact address were rejected: "Failure Notice: No such recipient." By mid-February Salus Gifts removed all content from its website but for two words: "Coming Soon." It never came. By March the site disappeared.

Two significant events followed as Martin Roth's role in the vision-making machine intensified. The German Roth - independently of the Irishman Cully ['Joseph Gabriel'] - incorporated companies in the neighboring United Kingdom that mirrored the Ireland companies he shared with Cully. No more Cully. No more Ireland.³⁴

To review, there were two Ireland companies co-owned by Cully and Roth to sell MDM merchandise: Trumpet [Coma] for books; Merdel [Salus Gifts] for 'trinkets.' Neither as of December 2014 reported any income despite two years' of online book sales and cash sales at 'Joseph Gabriel' seminars. Merdel was dissolved with no reported activity.

On 16 April 2014, a month after the Salus Gifts website disappeared, Roth re-made himself in the UK using a new tax identification number to register as sole owner/director of Unico Distribution Limited, which claimed "end-to-end supply chain solutions for distance sellers" – an "order fulfillment center." The filing papers show no other directors or officers. While identifying himself as a German national, he uses – as a personal residential address – a London location instead of his own Cologne, Germany, address [Berzdorfer Strasse] used on earlier Ireland company registrations. That London address – Suite A, 6 Honduras Street – is shared with at least 10 unrelated businesses. In other words, another 'mail drop.'

Unico Distribution itself uses a bogus office purchased from Regus at 450 Bath Road, Longford, Heathrow, London. No desk, no files, no staff. The company's website photos are generic stock images shared by other companies. Unico's website appeared in March 2014, a month after the Salus Gifts website disappeared. It has one client, an "Online Christian Gift Shop" – Salvido. Roth registered the Salvido website domain name on 24 March, two days before incorporating Unico. Salvido.com would become the 'official' sales site for the MDM trinkets.

The similarity in the names Salus and Salvido confound our understanding of the business aspects of the MDM enterprise. The newer Salvido used the same address at Portland House, Victoria, London, as used by the older Salus Gifts – a rented 'mail drop' purchased from Regus. Roth submitted his registration/incorporation papers by proxy through UHY FDW Company Secretarial in Dublin,. Two members of the firm - Alan Farrelly and Michael Bellew - served as the original directors of Trumpet Publishing Ltd., serving for one day on 6 June 2012.

Now there are three companies: two in Ireland and one in the UK. It doesn't stop there. Adding to the mystery-of-many-companies, eight days before Roth registered Unico Distribution in Belfast, UK, under his new tax ID, he registered a second UK company – Icon House Publishing Limited – again listing himself as sole owner/director and using the same address as Unico: Honduras Street, London. Presumably, Icon will replace Trumpet Publishing in Ireland, as Unico [Salvido] will replace Merdel for trinket sales. That would end Cully's formal business relationship with the German Roth and 'visionary' Carberry.

There is no recorded organizational relationship between any of the new companies – Salus Gifts [disappeared], Salvido [not a registered business name], Unico, and Icon or the earlier companies of Trumpet and Merdel. With the exception of Trumpet's Coma Books [book sales] and the new Salvido Gifts [medal sales], all 'companies' exist only as exercises in web page design, the likely creations of Mary Carberry's web-designing son.³⁵

On 27 March 2014 “Maria's assistant” confirmed on the 'official' Maria Divine Mercy Facebook page, Jesus to Mankind, that the Medal of Salvation would be available “from a different company – not Salus Gifts... They will be available for the world very shortly... We are going to have a fulfillment house in Malaysia which will distribute to Australia... We have three different suppliers working on them,” she posted. Maria's assistant, who identifies herself as “Grace” in correspondence, is believed to be Facebook user Andie Lynwood. She continued, “...you cannot even imagine how much the devil hates these medals. It is actually pretty unbelievable what we have gone through to get them. He hates their power.”

As the new “exclusive” distributor of Salvation Medals, Salvido references a future product: a ‘Seal of the Living God’ scapular. The scapular is addressed in an August 2013 ‘message’ received by Carberry from one of her spirits. “I now request you, child, to have the Medal of Salvation produced now and a scapular of the Seal of the Living God made.” The set-up for more revenue? A scapular is a religious object made of small pieces of cloth worn by Catholics in the fashion of monastic garments that promotes a particular devotion. As with the short-lived Salus Gifts, Salvido claims copyright ownership of the medal and yet-to-be scapular. The copyright notice is incoherent and ungrammatical:

“All corporate names, service marks, logos, trade names, trademarks, websites and domain names of Salvido.com remain the exclusive property of Salvido.com and the term ‘Medal of Salvation’; ‘Seal of the Living God Scapular’ and nothing in this agreement gives you, the buyer, the license to use these.” [stet]

A nearly indecipherable copyright symbol appears on the lower right back of the actual medal.

The Unico claim of managing “global fulfillment” – the process of follow-through from the initial online purchase, payment processing, and product delivery – is bogus. There is no staff at the Salvido non-company or its parent, Unico. Website source code reveals that “fulfillment” is actually handled by the eBay-owned e-commerce company – Magento – that handles processing of Mary Carberry’s books of compiled ‘visions.’

The website files for Salvido and Unico are located at the same computer server in Galway, Ireland, and share an identical website “IP” address as Coma Books, the ‘publisher’ of MDM’s three-volume collection of ‘visions.’ An IP address is a unique string of numbers that identifies a specific computer.

In the “About” section, Salvido uses the same language that appeared at the former Salus Gifts website claiming to be “exclusive” distributor of the magic medal:

“[Salvido] has been appointed to exclusively manage the global fulfillment and distribution of the Medal of Salvation and the Seal of the Living God Scapular under license. The Medal of Salvation is only available for sale online via www.salvido.com. No other website has been authorized to sell or distribute the medals.”

Only the owner of the medal would have authority to appoint, license, and authorize. Who is that person? Mary Carberry? Breffni Cully? Heinrich Martin Roth? Or someone yet to be introduced?

While MDM followers waited to purchase the ‘Medal of Salvation,’ Martin Roth was selling the medals through his German website. Roth received an early shipment possibly delivered by his then-business-partner Cully who visited Roth’s hometown of Cologne, Germany, on 29 March 2014 speaking at the Auditorium de Diakonie during a tour of Luxembourg, Austria and Germany promoting MDM and offering cash-only sales of MDM books. On 1 April, Roth wrote on his website, “The interest sparked by the medals is incredibly high. Stocks are empty. New production is going on. We ask all who ordered to be patient. We will try to mail the medals out as soon as possible.”

A Polish website also promoted early medal sales and linked to Roth for orders. The site confirmed that Salus Gifts was the original intended distributor of the medals. We read, “The administrators of the German site were given permission to distribute the medal now. Its price is one euro [$1.37 USD]. This is dictated by the need to cover the costs incurred by MDM, especially losses, and the need for further financial outlays for subsequent editions of books in many languages.”

But what "losses" were incurred? MDM books are ‘print on demand’ – printed one-by-one by an unidentified printer after orders and payments are received.

In June 2014 Salvido was accepting medal orders in Euros, pounds and dollars. The copyrighted medal sold for $25 for 25 [minimum order]³⁶ of the aluminum penny-valued trinkets. 40,000 orders will gross the company’s owner, Heinrich Martin Roth, a minimum $1 million - a nice payoff for four years of 'vision' business. Spiritual value: zero.

What is the point of so many companies and business names? Why not establish one company doing business under that company name? Instead we have four companies in two countries doing business under three names - Coma Books, Salus Gifts, Salvido Gifts. We suspect a 'play-as-you-go' operation that accommodates new circumstances and unexpected detours in the effort to conceal the direct involvement of the 'visionary' - Mary Carberry - from the profit side of her 'MDM' creation. How can we presume that Mary - as "McGovern" or "Carberry" - directly benefits financially from sales of MDM-related merchandise? Her name only appears once on business filings, and then only as a "witness" to the signatures of Cully and Roth in Merdel incorporation paperwork. With Cully, Mary's daughter "founded" Trumpet Publishing that later claimed the "may trade as" name of Coma Books, 'publisher' of the visionary's "Book of Truth." Then the daughter, Sarah, turns over her share of Trumpet to the German national Roth. Qui bono? Who benefits? Without a direct confession of one of the few key players would we ever know? Is there a 'hidden hand' that connects the pieces and completes the puzzle? There is more.

Where is Cully?

Since March 2014 there has been no mention of Breffni Cully - 'Joseph Gabriel' - giving MDM seminars. Roth removed Cully's name from the new UK-based MDM companies, though he remains as co-owner with Roth in Trumpet Publishing [Coma Books]. In late 2014 Cully and his wife offered their Ireland home for sale adding suspicion that Cully was washing his hands of any future involvement in the MDM enterprises.

Understandably, it was difficult for Cully to maintain a normal life with his heightened visibility and embarrassment caused by internet disclosures of his promotion of Carberry's 'Maria Divine Mercy' scam.

Early in the game, Cully identified his business on electronic business 'cards' as "The Warning Second Coming" – the title of Carberry's website of almost-daily messages. He traveled the world giving Maria Divine Mercy seminars as 'Joseph Gabriel.' An April 2014 attempt to secure a bed-and-breakfast in Normandy, France, may have been the final push to his departure from the vision-venture. The owner of the inn refused to rent to Cully. According to the owner's comments on an online holiday rental forum, Cully attempted to secure a room using two different emails and addresses. On 11 April the Normandy inn owner wrote:

“It turns out this weirdo is mixed up in promoting some ‘Catholic visionary’ called ‘Maria the Divine Mercy’ AKA Mary Carberry. He also goes under the name Joseph Gabriel. I would advise everyone not to touch them with a bargepole.”³⁷

Was Cully ever really a 'believer'? Researchers found a photo of Breffni and his wife's bedroom on an online real estate listing used to promote sale of their home. In a sad departing statement, on the dresser at the end of a stack of books is a copy of Maria Divine Mercy's 'Seal of the Living God' - an indication that Cully had accepted at face value Carberry's 'visionary' claims.

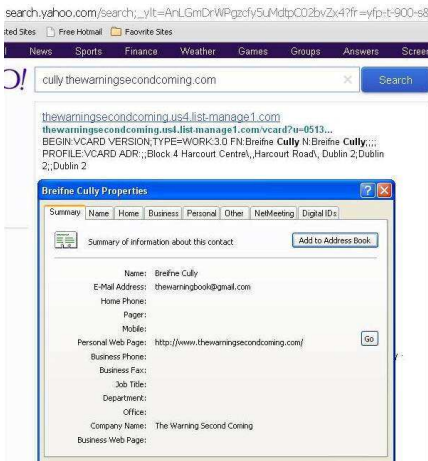

'Maria Divine Mercy' Companies

Here are the companies associated with the 'Maria Divine Mercy' enterprise:

Trumpet Publishing [may trade as] Coma Books – Ireland, publisher of the multi-volume "Book of Truth," established June 2012 six months after book orders were solicited, co-owned by retired Irish dentist and multi-level marketing entrepreneur Breffni Cully and German promoter of 'visionaries' Heinrich Martin Roth, original majority owner was Sarah Carberry, daughter of the condemned seer, no public filings of revenue, annual return "overdue," claims copyright ownership of 'vision,' Dublin mail-drop address, online orders processed by Magento – a US e-commerce company.

Merdel Limited – Registered in Ireland December 2013 to sell religious items including "medals", co-owned by Cully and Roth, no activity, followed domain registration of "Salus Gifts," Dublin mail-drop address, dissolved within six months.

Salus Gifts – UK ‘mail drop’ address, domain name registered October 2013, trial pages appear online February 2014, no company registration, claimed to be exclusive distributor of ‘Salvation Medal,’ required future medal purchasers to set-up log in and password information, disappeared in April with captured log in/password data.

Cully's electronic business card was the first clue that MDM was a fraud. He announces his business name as the Warning Second Coming, the title of MDM's website of end-time messages.

Unico Distribution – UK, web pages first observed in April, name registered in April by Roth, claims to be “fulfillment” company, links to Salvado as only client, owned exclusively by Roth, shares address with unrelated companies and Icon House Publishing Limited, no staff, exists only as a website, no response to inquirers, generic stock images used on website.

Salvido – First website reference discovered April 2014 as a link from Unico Distribution, website live briefly mid May 2014, initially required login/password entry, London mail-drop address, no evidence of company registration in the UK or Ireland, no other company claims to “do business as” Salvido, like its predecessor Salus Gifts it claims to be exclusive distributor of the ‘Salvation Medal,’ U.S.-based Magento e-commerce company handles medal order processing.

Icon House Publishing Limited – UK registered April 2014 by Roth as sole owner/director, shares address with Unico and unrelated companies, also used as Roth’s personal residential address, no staff, zero online presence, presumably will take over MDM's publishing activity from Trumpet.

Successful business woman? Or bankrupt and unemployed?

The comings and goings of short-lived companies has characterized Mary Carberry's professional life for fifteen years, long before her first talking-Jesus-picture experience. During that time the Irish 'seer' - who promotes herself as a "successful business woman" - has co-owned eleven companies with her daughter Sarah or husband John. All but the current business has failed. Marketing Ambition [dissolved January 2012] and Ambition Awards [dissolved 2013] ended with judgments registered for bad debts. All were delinquent in filing required annual returns.

Mary Carberry's business 'success' was not enough to keep up with monthly house payments. In December 2009, while still a "high flier" and agnostic, and a year away from her first celestial encounter, the Building Society in upscale Malahide near Dublin sought to repossess her home. John and Mary Carberry were $67,000 behind on payments on their $1.4 million residence. Somehow they found "legal ways" - words later written by German business partner Roth - to satisfy the debt.³⁸

In October 2014 Carberry filed paperwork as director of Future Media with her daughter Sarah to change her personal address from her Malahide home to Pembroke Street in Dublin, an address previously used by "McGovern PR." Yes, another 'mail drop.' Also in October, to further disassociate the name "Mary McGovern/Carberry" from her Malahide address and her marketing/public relations background, a number of new identities for a fictitious woman with the same name - "Mary McGovern/Carberry" - were created, simultaneously identified on nearly 20 different social media sites as a Harvard University law student,³⁹ a nutrition student at Doncaster University, and a 20-year check-out clerk at a California grocery store chain--all using the same photo! -- "I put groceries through the tills and help customers pack." From Tumblr, with Carberry's characteristic missing apostrophes and lower case "i": [stet]

"Im Mary McGovern, aka Mary Carberry, aka Mary McGovern Carberry. Im a Law Student of Harvard University and i thought I would create an About.me page..."

Carelessly, the websites are "tagged" with the words "Maria Divine Mercy." Tags, normally hidden from view, allow online search engines to target websites that match certain search words. In this case, a search for "Maria Divine Mercy" will first scan for websites tagged with that name. Were these sites created as a joke by a freelance MDM admirer? Or were they a deliberate attempt by Carberry herself to confound the path to the true identity of the Malahide Madame?

Carberry may be unemployed. Her "award-winning" business, McGovern PR - started in December 1988 when she was 32 - was "liquidated" in May 1999 after 12 years of business. "McGovern PR" later became a "traded as" name under Ambition Awards that closed in 2013. In a May 2012 article in Business and Leadership McGovern PR claims to do business with a "sister agency Future Media."⁴⁰ At the same time Maria Divine Mercy warns of any-day-now apocalyptic events, Mary McGovern issues a news story promoting "video production covering fashion, food, health, sport and public awareness content."⁴¹

In November 2014, Future Media filed its annual report for the previous year showing three times more debt than assets. [As of December 2014 the annual report for Trumpet Publishing, publishers of "The Book of Truth," was a year overdue. Trumpet has never provided a statement of earnings. Where is book sale revenue reported?]

We know McGovern-Carberry is not hanging out at Eighty Twenty PR, a company she "founded" and "teamed with" in 2009, a year before her first supposed 'Jesus' communication. A representative of that company claims McGovern's relationship with Eighty Twenty ended the year it began.⁴² Her LinkedIn webpage – a social media site for business and government professionals where she posted a 20-year-old photo of herself – has disappeared and re-appeared since disclosure of her MDM alter-ego in late 2013.

The 'angel' and 'last final prophet' – titles claimed by Carberry – is associated with only one active company. She is co-director of Future Media Communications Limited, founded by daughter Sarah and an older son, with Mary and Sarah as directors. The company claims on its website to be a digital marketing agency but dismisses online inquirers claiming that the site is being updated – “Check back with us soon.” Sarah’s real work with the company is maintaining a recipe-trading forum at ilovecooking.ie. The most recent public filing says Mary owns 98 percent of the company.⁴³

The notion that the self-proclaimed ‘visionary’ gains credibility by claiming to be a successful business woman stands in contrast to her financial distress over 15 years and the maze of short-term businesses with questionable reporting and bad debts.

The Australian Connection

"So I am definitely not the type you would expect to be receiving these messages.

--'Maria Divine Mercy,' Mother of God forum, June 2, 2011

MDM's visions earned credibility early-on from contributions at her 'official' Facebook page written by Fr. Marie-Paul, who identified himself as a Catholic priest. He was literate, persuasive, and provided convincing theological support.

But Fr. Marie-Paul would slip references to other 'messages' not so believable, tying MDM with prior visionaries including condemned deceased seer Veronica Leuken from Bayside, New York, and the Australian cultist William Kamm,⁴⁴ 63, who does business as “the Little Pebble.”

Kamm served prison time for crimes against two underage girls and was not scheduled for release until October 2015.⁴⁵ In early November 2014 he was "set free from jail," a year short of his full 10-year sentence. His surprise release made headlines in Australian press.⁴⁶

Kamm himself aggressively promotes MDM's messages on his website, of which there is little else left, and on YouTube videos through an intermediary, his 'bishop' Malcolm Broussard.⁴⁷ Kamm claims he will be the last pope.

Kamm-the-Pebble has a newer name, William Costellia, which may help establish a post-prison identity that separates him from the subject of the book "A Wolf Among the Sheep: Australian Cult Leader William Kamm" authored by Graeme Webber. Kamm's messages remarkably paralleled the messages from Maria Divine Mercy. Grow your own food, money will be worthless, buy gold and silver, the end is near.

Researchers discovered that Kamm's 'vocal' priest - Fr. Marie-Paul - wasn't really a priest, but rather a member of the William "the Pebble" Kamm cult excommunicated from the Catholic Church by Australian Bishop Peter Ingham. When Facebook followers increasingly questioned his priestly status, the Canadian administrator of the 'official' MDM Facebook page, Jesus to Mankind - who later had a 'falling out' with MDM - sought advice directly from Maria Divine Mercy who spoke directly to Jesus who said the fake priest's contribution was "important." Maria emails, "[Fr. Marie-Paul] added great credibility to the messages. I was sad to see him go and I miss his posts."⁴⁸

The fake priest - 'Marie-Paul' - promoted MDM messages under different names and different websites including Biblical False

Prophet where he claimed Pope Francis is an ally of the end-times anti-Christ. And that the anti-Christ is a stuttering American of East Indian ancestry who authors business books that address world hunger. He's sure of this and claims an unidentified 'visionary' as his source. And Maria's Jesus calls his contributions "important."⁴⁹

In 2005, before his make-over as 'Fr. Marie-Paul Lasalette,' a 'priest' in William Kamm's schismatic Order of St. Charbel, the US-born Canadian resident used his real name, Bruce Sabalasky, to write as a character witness for Kamm while his conviction was under appeal. His lengthy dissertation equated Kamm to the Biblical Patriarch

Joseph. On the title page he identified himself as "Webmaster for the Little Pebble Website Mirror, Chicago, Illinois."⁵⁰

Prison time may have cost Kamm his karma. Australia's Courier Mail⁵¹ reported in January 2011 that Kamm sought help from British medium Angela McGhee who appeared on the TV series Psychic Investigators. Kamm emailed McGhee asking, "When will I be released from prison...and when will I be fully vindicated?"

McGhee reported the incident commenting, "I think he can get his own answers. If he was a seer he'd definitely know." She called Kamm's request "the equivalent of maybe Jack the Ripper in England writing to me."

Unraveling the web

The story of the future pope and convicted rapist William Kamm, whose heavenly messages pre-visualized those of MDM, now takes an interesting and curious person-to-person journey to the House of Carberry. But to get there, we must go back to the confident 60-year-old who spoke at the Maria Divine Mercy workshops using the name 'Joseph Gabriel.'

Breffni Cully, the retired dentist, business man and cycling enthusiast ["the flying dentist"], spoke excitedly at seminars promoting the visions of the Irish 'seer,' bringing with him the Jesus-picture that talks to the visionary. Prior to his MDM involvement, he engaged in a number of business ventures, including Pharmanex, a division of the multi-level marketing company Nu Skin. On various sites his name is spelled as Breifne, Breifni, Breffni, and Breffini.

In 2007 he got into legal trouble. The Inishowen News of Donegal, Ireland, reported that Cully was involved in a "medical card scheme" that earned him $144,504. With all his relationships, personal and business, he invited only two friends to his Google+ page. His estate manager and Christine Lammermann.

Christine Lammermann is the former mother-in-law of the Little Pebble, William Kamm! Kamm-the-cultist has a relative who is a personal friend of a Carberry business partner.

The Lammermann Link

In 1991 Lammermann and daughter Bettina immigrated to Australia from Munich, Germany, to join the Little Pebble's [Kamm's] commune. At its peak, the order Kamm founded in 1983 had an estimated 100,000 followers. Bettina at 17 became Kamm's "secret mystical wife" and "Queen of the Cult." She gave birth to six of Kamm's 16 children – from 8 'wives' – before 'divorcing' him in 2006, a year into his prison term. Bettina, now 42, has moved far from the maddening crowd. Her mother remained in the commune for another seven years and, until recently, used its address on Koloona Drive, Cambewarra, New South Wales, for her internet marketing business.

Christine Lammermann, an online marketing entrepreneur of natural health and other products, is also an organizer of the Catholic "Our Lady of Refuge" community inspired by German 'Bishop' Ralph Napierski who attempted to participate in the conclave to elect the current pope. Napierski, who occasionally poses with nude women and sexual devices, isn't a real bishop; he just dresses as one.⁵²

In mid-November 2011 Maria Divine Mercy's prophetic messages began to appear on Lammermann's website with the same frequency as they appear at the 'official' MDM Website. But there is no attribution to MDM or reference or link to her site. At one point, Lammermann found it necessary to specifically deny claims she wrote the messages. In a comment she wrote on a blog Lammermann seems to admit to the authorship of one MDM prayer. In reference to prayer number 31 she comments, "I never thought anyone would like what I am writing."⁵³

We know from her radio interview, by her admission and accent, that the "Last Prophet" Maria Divine Mercy is an Irish business woman with children. But might she be getting a little help from her friends? Better yet, is this a brokered marketing scheme between an Australian cultist, an Irish businessman, and a marketing/PR consultant, all seeking to advance their own agendas?

He said, she said

The value of particular pieces of information found on the trail leading to the identity of Maria Divine Mercy was not always apparent. As pieces gathered to form patterns the importance of clues found months ago might rise or diminish.

Herzmariens, for example, Mary Carberry's partner in a Joe Coleman prayer group, had no value until the name was attached to Martin Roth, a translator and seller of MDM books, and Roth's name rose in value when "Heinrich" Martin Roth was identified as a business partner of Breffni Cully in publishing MDM books.

And so it was with Christine Lammermann who was 'friended' by the retired Irish dentist Breffni Cully on his Google+ page. This implies that Christine, who regularly posted MDM messages on her blog, in turn, knew Breffni Cully and his involvement promoting MDM messages.

Research on her leads us to explore the doomsday cult leader William Kamm to whom Lammermann surrendered her 17-year-old daughter in 'mystical' marriage, and Kamm reminds us of 'Marie-Paul,' who provided theological defense for the early messages of Marie Divine Mercy before he was exposed as a fake-priest in Kamm's cult.

William Kamm's value rises further from the discovery of correspondence he issued from his prison cell on 1 November 2013 containing a new "message from Jesus." It was sent through email by his fake 'bishop' Malcolm Broussard to a private group.

This new message from Kamm's 'Jesus' is remarkably identical in substance, phrasing and in particular use of terms and words to messages from MDM – "Billions will be saved!" In Kamm's message 'Jesus' refers twice to Maria Divine Mercy. "Remember what I told you through my prophet Maria Divine Mercy...Pray for Maria Divine Mercy, my Last Prophet."

In 1981 at age 32, before he transformed into "the Little Pebble," Kamm frequented the Bayside, New York, 'apparition' site, kissing the girls and baring his chest. Canadian journalist Anne Cillis was there. She writes in "Bayside Backstage" [Archangel Press, 1986] that she told Kamm, "Morally speaking, you are a disaster...either you leave or we will kick you out.” Cillis continues, “He then walked over to the door and put his hand on his hip in this sexy pose and said: ‘Well, I guess it’s time Australia got its own seer.’”⁵⁴

Kamm returned to Australia, began his sect as the Order of St. Charbel, and in June 2003 earned the condemnation of Bishop Peter William Ingham of Australia who issued a formal decree stating that Catholics who follow the ministry of the “so-called Order of St. Charbel, founded by William Kamm...place themselves outside the Catholic Church and are by that fact excommunicated.”

Does Bishop Ingham’s excommunication implicitly apply to the repackaged Kamm in the form of Maria Divine Mercy? Why is Kamm so obvious in his support of MDM, even claiming that he, in return, is endorsed by her? Is Kamm communicating to MDM from prison through an intermediary?⁵⁵

Researchers have credible information that supports that contention.

Email Interceptus

A German researcher⁵⁶ has obtained emails revealing secret ongoing communication between Australian cult leader William Kamm and Irish ‘visionary’ Maria Divine Mercy. The email exchange supports the notion that ‘Maria’ - Carberry - is under the influence or direction of the excommunicated Kamm. Researchers have original emails with full text.

The emails are exchanged between Magdalena – leader of a German prayer group – Kamm’s ‘bishop’ Malcolm Broussard⁵⁷, Broussard’s fake priest ‘Fr. Marie-Paul,’ and MDM [Carberry] email-responding assistant Grace.

There is no admission from Mary ‘MDM’ Carberry of direct communication with Kamm or his associates. She is forbidden by her ‘spirits’ from supporting any other ‘visionary.’ There was, however, that curious email written by Carberry as ‘MDM’ supporting Kamm’s fake priest ‘Marie-Paul.’ As reported earlier, MDM claimed a message from ‘Jesus’ that ‘Marie-Paul’ is a “good man.”

Below are the emails originating in Germany, written in English, exchanged between Oct. 31 and Nov. 5, 2013. They include an admission from ‘Fr. Marie-Paul’ – Sabalasky – that he has ongoing secret contact with ‘Maria Divine Mercy.’

A leader of a German prayer group, Magdalena, emailed MDM’s assistant, Grace, regarding a claim from ‘the Little Pebble’ that MDM endorsed him as a prophet. Magdalena’s prayer group finds this odd as MDM has been forbidden by ‘Jesus’ from commenting on other visionaries.

Grace responds: Maria is forbidden to speak of any other visionary true or false. She is not permitted to give anyone advice. This is not her role.

Magdalena to Grace: If Maria Divine Mercy is forbidden to speak about other seers or visionaries, why does the Little Pebble say that Maria Divine Mercy believes him to be God’s Prophet? Is he lying? You can imagine that our prayer group is a bit confused.

Grace: As I have already told you, Jesus would never permit Maria to speak about anyone, true or false.

Magdalena writes Broussard, the Little Pebble’s ‘bishop:’ We are a prayer group in Germany. We believe in the Little Pebble and Maria Divine Mercy. The Little Pebble believes also in the messages of Maria Divine Mercy. At the moment we are confused. A letter from the Little Pebble claims that Maria Divine Mercy believes him to be God’s Prophet. We have contacted Maria’s assistance, Grace, who says Maria never said the Little Pebble is God’s Prophet. We are astonished to hear this. Is there any information that proves the opposite?

Broussard: Greetings from Australia. I informed the Little Pebble of your email this morning. He wants me to assure you that he is in private contact with Maria Divine Mercy. She has also replied to me when I wrote to her on his behalf. She has also replied to one of our priests who also wrote to her on behalf of the Little Pebble. We hold this correspondence as confidential. She will neither confirm nor deny any reference to the Little Pebble because Our Lord requires that of her at this time. The person you refer to, Grace, is not privileged to the information shared between the Little Pebble and Maria Divine Mercy. She will not speak of these details to Grace. Do not doubt. These two chosen souls are destined by God to work together for the salvation of souls. The Little Pebble told me that when he is out of prison he will make plans to visit all of you.

Marie-Paul: Dear Magdalena, I am a priest of the Charbelite Order and was forwarded your message to Bishop Broussard about Maria Divine Mercy and the Little Pebble. I am the priest who is the contact with Maria Divine Mercy. I wish to confirm that I only speak directly with Maria Divine Mercy and not with her workers because the communication is confidential. Jesus has told Maria Divine Mercy that she is not allowed to comment whatsoever on any other of God's Prophets or Seers. I do hope that this testimony will help remove your concerns.

Magdalena to Broussard: We were all happy to get an answer from you. Some hours ago we received a message from Fr. Marie-Paul. Our prayer group thinks Fr. Marie Paul is the spiritual leader of Maria Divine Mercy. We are a little disappointed with "Pope Franzikus" and believe what Maria Divine Mercy has revealed about him. Do you believe it possible in the future that the Little Pebble will become pope?

Broussard: No, Fr. Marie-Paul is not her spiritual director. He is in another country, but they correspond. Today the Little Pebble said to tell you his Papacy is a mystery regarding himself and Pope Benedict XVI. It is the same papacy. It does not conflict with Maria Divine Mercy. He told me that when he is pope he will reign in Germany. Feel free to share this with your group. I assure you he will be the last pope of the Catholic Church. Prophecy is always mysterious and like a puzzle. Yes, what Our Lord and Our Lady have revealed about Francis as the anti-pope is true. He is gradually playing his role and making his moves.

Emails to Janice Williams, secretary to the Order of St. Charbel, seeking confirmation of these emails were ignored, though prior emails were traded. The big surprise in this exchange was 'Marie-Paul's' email admitting direct, private "confidential" communication with Maria Divine Mercy. What is he sharing that must be secret? Is he the "Secret Prophet" referenced during the first month of 'messages'?⁵⁸

Surprise Letter Reaches MidwayStreet

To review, initial interest in Kamm began with the discovery that Maria Divine Mercy's [Carberry's] official Facebook page was frequented by Kamm-follower "Fr. Marie-Paul" who provided convincing theological defense for the alleged visions. Facebook followers could not find "Marie-Paul" in any list of priests. Questions to him of his priestly status were ignored.

MDM's Facebook followers claimed Marie-Paul was a follower of The Little Pebble and was 'ordained' in Pebble's - William Kamm's - Church-condemned Order of St. Charbel. When the administrator of the MDM Facebook page addressed the issue directly with MDM, she defended Marie-Paul and said Jesus said he was a good man. She would be sorry to see him leave.

More exploration into Kamm revealed a path that led to Kamm's mother-in-law Christine Lammermann to Breffni Cully, Carberry's Irish business partner.

A German researcher sealed the relationship with a correspondence to Kamm's "bishop" Malcolm Broussard that included a surprise email from "Fr. Marie-Paul" who claimed secret ongoing contact with MDM, despite being expelled from her Facebook page.

Now the letter from Kamm.

In 2014 Kamm, assigned to kitchen duty during his 10-year prison conviction, posted an online profile at Justice Action, an Australian organization that assists contact with prisoners through email.⁵⁹

Participating prisoners receive special email addresses. Staff at Justice Action review and print the incoming email and deliver it to the prisoner who, in turn, hand writes responses that Justice Action reviews, scans, and attaches to email returned to the original writer. The author of this book, Saseen, emailed Kamm through Justice Action. On 8 July 2014 Kamm responded. The complete letter appears in the appendix.

In response to questions from Saseen, Kamm uses a word not associated with Catholic visionaries: clairvoyants! Psychics, mediums, practitioners of black magic, tarot card readers might be called clairvoyant. Not seers or visionaries receiving messages from Heaven. In referencing himself, MDM, and others who have "mystical experience" he writes, "The world calls them clairvoyants." He miswrites "clairvoyance." He claims, "I have worked with over 300 such mystics for over 40 years from all over the world."

"I have known Maria Divine Mercy since 2011 [note: the year she first began posting messages] as I have a similar gift from God as she does....when I heard about Maria I asked Jesus. He told me she was sent by Him. I contacted her and Jesus told her I was like her."

Kamm writes that Maria's messages are similar to his and sometimes identical on the same dates. This is no surprise as Kamm, or his agents, are suspected sources of the messages. "I believe her 100 percent," writes Kamm. He signs his letter "William."

[MDM's messages are also close-to-identical to those of another Australian 'seer,' Debra Geilesky, who began the Magnificat Meal Movement. The little-known 'visionary' also tells us the reign of the anti-Christ is beginning.⁶⁰]

Kamm's letter confirms in his own handwriting:

- 1. He was aware of the MDM messages the year they began.
- 2. He had personal contact with Mary Carberry.
- 3. He agrees with our early-on observation that the 'messages' were the same or similar to Kamm's.
- 4. He endorses MDM's messages without exception.

Kamm gave his return address as "Kamm 389834, Long-Bay Area 3Wing14, Locked Bay 21, Matraville 2036."

He did not respond to subsequent correspondence.

Martin Roth Speaks!

"Should you continue to blaspheme against Me, by declaring My Messages to be the work of the devil, then you will never be forgiven. For this is the greatest sin against God."

--'Jesus' message to MDM, May 24, 2013

Who would have dreamed? The research into the identity of the invisible woman behind Maria Divine Mercy began with suspicions and conjectures. There were paths to nowhere made up by surprise discoveries. Could we know with absolute certainty that Mary McGovern-Carberry is Maria Divine Mercy? Would a key player ever confess his involvement in the scam?

Among the unanticipated events was the picture of MDM seminar-speaker 'Joseph Gabriel' matched with a photo of Breffni Cully, owner of the MDM businesses. There was the signature page in the Merdel Ltd Articles of Incorporation with Mary McGovern's signature as witness to the signatures of Breffni Cully and Heinrich Martin Roth, promoters of the visions of 'Maria Divine Mercy.' That placed Mary McGovern-Carberry in the same room with the characters that promoted and profited from the 'Maria Divine Mercy' scheme.

There was the conversation with the leader of a German prayer group with William 'The Little Pebble' Kamm's 'bishop' Malcolm Broussard with participation from Bruce 'Marie-Paul' Sabalasky admitting secret ongoing communication with MDM. There was Kamm's handwritten letter admitting direct contact with 'Maria.'

And then there was the undreamed gift that arrived on 4 February 2014. Heinrich Martin Roth, German business partner of the 'visionary' Maria Divine Mercy, posted a 30+ page 'rant' on his website responding to a flier distributed in Germany, Switzerland and Austria by priests, prayer groups, retreat centers and members of the Legion of Mary exposing the MDM fraud.

The English-speaking research team should never have known what Roth did. He posted his 'rant' on his German website for a German audience. While defending 'Maria Divine Mercy' and attempting to support the authenticity of her 'messages from Heaven,' Roth provides embarrassing details exposing the 'visionary's' identity and history. He admits: Ireland resident Mary Carberry is Maria Divine Mercy!⁶¹

Roth's emotional tirade was triggered by four events: 1] A two-page flier edited by the Swiss group "Katholiken furr Papst und Kirche" - Catholics pro Pope and Church - that exposed the MDM fraud primarily using information authored by 2] Michael Hesemann⁶² posted at the popular German Catholic website Kath.net. Roth also reacts to articles at 3] MidwayStreet.wordpress.com, the work of international researchers exploring the identity of the all-internet, all-anonymous 'visionary.' Roth ends his 'rant' attacking the condemnation of MDM by 4] Bishop Andreas Laun, Auxiliary Bishop of Salzburg, Austria.

Between January and August 2014, 40,000 copies of the anti-MDM flier were distributed to the German-speaking countries by Catholic lay people, prayer groups, parishes, publishers and at pilgrimage sites. MDM followers countered by distributing their own flier they claim was written by Roth. Roth's 'rant' is posted at two websites: his own and that of another German MDM supporter, Catholic-convert Jochen Roemer.

Researchers first linked Mary Carberry to Martin Roth through his pen name "Herzmariens." Carberry and Herzmariens names appear together on 'psychic' Joe Coleman's website as contacts for a prayer gathering. 'Herzmariens' was linked to a website promoting visionaries hosted by Roth.⁶³ Later, "Heinrich" Martin Roth shows as a business partner in government documents forming companies selling MDM books and medals.

On Jan. 30, six days before posting his ‘rant’ at Herz mariens.de, Roth emailed his document to staff at German Catholic publishers Miriam-Verlag, believing, in error, that the publisher originated the flier. Within days a German translator informed researchers of the document and summarized its content:

To prove he does not benefit financially, Roth makes dangerous admissions. He says he only lent his name to the MDM companies to satisfy legal requirements to avoid paying taxes, as "items of devotion" are not taxed in Ireland. Roth and Cully are owners-of-record of Trumpet and Merdel, but the companies really belong to Carberry, writes Roth. He and Cully do not gain financially – they only assume liability to satisfy financial claims.⁶⁴

He describes a summer 2013 gathering with Carberry and several of Roth’s friends. They witnessed Carberry speed-writing without error spontaneous answers to questions posed by members of the group. Mary correctly answered a particular question that a participant says was known only to her.

Roth writes, quoting his friend: “And then I asked Mary if I could ask her a question about Jesus. She said ‘Yes’ and to my surprise went immediately to her place and picked up a picture of Jesus and a small notebook. I thought that she wanted to write down my question in order to give her answer to me at a later time. After I asked the question she (to my surprise) prayed over the picture of Jesus briefly, perhaps 10 seconds. Then she began to write. I sat next to her and watched as she, without hesitation and thought and with great speed, wrote this text without error.....”

Roth concludes that Mary’s ability to communicate with spirits in the form of automatic writing is necessarily from God. Still, Roth says Mary might make mistakes in hand-written transcription or in transferring the ‘messages’ to computer that result in confusion. This explains why some ‘messages’ are rewritten.

Roth compares Carberry to St. Paul. He admits that he and Carberry were followers and promoters of psychic-reader Joe Coleman, who initially promoted Mary’s ‘visions.’ He believes the breakup with

Coleman was Coleman's initiative. [Note: In June 2013 Coleman acknowledged that Mary Carberry is 'Maria Divine Mercy.' He wrote: "I pray for her [Carberry] that she will turn back to God. The devil works in many ways to deceive people and keep them from the truth..."]

Roth continues: Two people from Germany who met "Mary" in July 2012 confirm she is a business woman and "business women do not invent messages from Heaven." Roth admits that Carberry had financial troubles, but he says she found "legal" ways to satisfy her debt. Carberry, an angel and prophet, still knows little about religion. He writes, Mary does not understand the messages any better than anyone else. That is why she must not give explanations; She could never invent such messages, neither the quantity nor the depth.

Roth confirms that his business partner Breffni Cully and 'Joseph Gabriel' are the same person. Roth writes that Cully is not concealing his identity as his real name is Breffni Joseph Gabriel Cully!

Roth believes attacks on him and Carberry are signs of authenticity proving the messages are truly divine. He knows nothing of any link between Carberry and the Australian criminal cultist William "The Little Pebble" Kamm. Roth denies Carberry's 'messages' contain threatening content, but, he says, like the Gospels, some people are afraid of topics such as hell and purgatory. He claims there is no message threatening those who do not believe them.

While claiming Mary has been slandered, there is nothing at MidwayStreet, the Hesemann article, or the printed flier that Roth contradicts or denies. He says MDM attackers lack love. He asks, how can a woman of Mary's background, lack of religious training, and absence of devotion, possibly make up a thousand visions and a hundred prayers? They must be from God!

Roth does not consider that there may be darker forces at play.

On 19 February 2014, the day after Roth's 'Rant' was exposed at MidwayStreet, he wrote on his German website: "[My] statement...concerning the attacks on this mission...[were]... misused to twist my words, to distort, and to use against "The Book of Truth" and against Mary. I will not post any more statements about [the content of the flier] on our websites.”

Oddly, Roth then added the MidwayStreet website address – midwaystreet.wordpress.com/updates. He follows with this:

“Urgent Appeal: MDM urgently asks us and especially all prayer groups to pray for this mission as satan massively acts against the messages...”

Dublin Bishop condemns 'visions' of 'Maria Divine Mercy'

On 16 April 2014, Easter Week, after persistent worldwide inquiries, the Catholic bishop of the Archdiocese of Dublin, Diarmuid Martin, released a statement condemning the messages of "Maria Divine Mercy." It is a rule of the Church that the presiding bishop over a claimant to visions is the authority to determine their authenticity. Bishop Martin became the seventh Catholic bishop to condemn the 'seer,' along with the Conference of Slovakian Bishops.

This was a major set-back for the MDM enterprise. By continuing to disseminate her 'messages,' Carberry dismisses the authority of her bishop and her Church essentially forming a cult with the former head of the McGovern PR/Marketing Agency as its only authority. Will MDM followers understand the implication of continuing to follow these ‘messages?’

By his statement, the Dublin bishop is admitting to substantial knowledge that ‘Maria Divine Mercy’ is a member of his diocese, narrowing the search for the woman-in-hiding who has never admitted her true identity. In fact, Mary Carberry is a registered member of St. Sylvester’s Parish in Malahide where her grandchild was baptized and her daughter was married. The pastor of St. Sylvester’s has refused to respond to inquiries of Carberry’s active status.

This is the Bishop’s statement, published 16 April 2014:⁶⁵

Statement of Archdiocese of Dublin
On the Alleged Visionary
"Maria Divine Mercy"

Requests for clarification have been coming to the Archdiocese of Dublin concerning the authenticity of alleged visions and messages received by a person who calls herself “Maria Divine Mercy” and who may live in the Archdiocese of Dublin.

Archbishop Diarmuid Martin wishes to state that these messages and alleged visions have no ecclesiastical approval and many of the texts are in contradiction with Catholic theology.

These messages should not be promoted or made use of within Catholic Church associations.

A few weeks after Archbishop Diarmuid Martin's statement, the weekly Wanderer, the oldest US Catholic publication, reported, "The 'seer' has been exposed as Dublin resident Mary Carberry."⁶⁶

Major Theological Defender Abandons Ship

Within hours of release of the bishop's statement, recognizing the significance of the condemnation, Dr. Kelly Bowring, Carberry's chief theological supporter, published an announcement on his web page withdrawing his book that claimed the messages of 'Maria Divine Mercy' were "plausible."

A representative of Bowring writes,

"On Wednesday of Holy Week 2014, the Archdiocese of Dublin issued a statement on its website on the writings of the alleged visionary Maria Divine Mercy (MDM) stating that the Archbishop wishes to state that 'these messages should not be promoted or made use of.' In compliance with this statement, Two Hearts Press and Dr. Bowring will no longer be selling the book, 'The Great Battle,' which had made use of MDM as a source."⁶⁷

Mary Carberry does not rest in peace. She continues to publish 'messages' from 'Jesus,' disregarding her bishop's directive that the messages not be promoted.

With the Bishop's statement, those who continue to follow the fake 'visionary' place themselves outside the Church as adherents of a non-Catholic cult. MDmers might say, the 'remnant church.'

Bishop's on MDM

These are the published warnings and condemnations of several Catholic bishops in different parts of the world who have read the messages of Maria Divine Mercy. This list was provided by MariaDivineMercyTrueOrFalse.blogspot.com •Bishop Richard. J. Malone, apostolic administrator for the Diocese of Portland issued a letter forbidding dissemination of MDM messages in the Diocese.

•Archbishop Mark Coleridge of Brisbane wrote a letter to the faithful of his Archdiocese that upon examination he has found the messages to be fraudulent and corrosive of the Christian faith.

•Archbishop Denis J. Hart of Melbourne informed the faithful that MDM messages and related matters do not have the approval of the Church, and their dissemination is to be discontinued, and any message or leaflets are to be disposed of in his Archdiocese.

•Slovakian Conference of Bishops found the messages to be heretical and issued a warning to the faithful to stay away from the messages.

•Bishop Andreas Laun, Auxiliary Bishop of Salzburg, Austria, warned Catholics against MDM messages in Kath.net news.

•Bishop Ronald P. Fabbro of London Diocese, Canada, issued a letter to priests warning against MDM. The letter was not meant to be published. The contents were posted at an online forum. We have confirmation of its authenticity.

•Bishop Greg O'Kelly SJ warns against cults within the Catholic Church and mentions MDM as one alongside the Little Pebble or Debra from Magnificent Meal Movement.

Are we there yet?

Mary Carberry's 'imminent' end-time messages may extend far into the future. The seers of Necedah, Wisconsin, and later Bayside, New York, each reported visions for 20 years, as did Ireland's publicly-shamed Christina Gallagher. All Church-condemned. There are hundreds of others. Followers speak of the promotion of Catholic devotions, the emphasis on prayer, fasting, penance, recitation of the Rosary and the Divine Mercy Chaplet. There are 170 MDM prayers that form a Crusade of Prayer that circles the world. And it's only four years old! Jesus' work? Or another diabolical trick to deceive faithful and sincere Christ-followers? There is honey in the trap.

The financial stress the Carberrys endured evidenced by the threat of the loss of their home and resulting social and business embarrassment established an emotional foundation that may have pushed Carberry to seek spiritual comfort. Her association with Joe Coleman possibly suggested her own transcendental project. Or was this a calculated scam from the beginning, as we suggest?

She had in-family talent and knowledge to market to a world starved for spiritual clarity. And she could do it better than the "unremarkable housewife" Christina Gallagher.

Perhaps Carberry or Joe Coleman or other 'seers' do not set out initially to deceive. The sincerity in the eyes of Coleman kneeling in prayer wins hearts. The prayers and messages from those behind the curtain of Maria Divine Mercy capture minds and souls. But we know the devil will embrace his enemies and betray his friends in the grand exercise of wickedness and entrapment.

Carberry is inside a game from which she cannot escape. She must never admit or hint to anyone that MDM is an invention of her creative mind, with possible assistance from conjured spirits and close family allies. The government of Ireland will accept 'visionary' claims and make tax-exempt "articles of devotion" - as pointed out by Roth, but it will not accept fraud - conspiring to deceive for financial gain. The hint of deception will destroy whatever is financially keeping Carberry and members of her family in their Malahide home. Is there prison time ahead for those who knowingly perpetuated this scam on eager-to-believe Catholics? Likely, Carberry and her associates will go to their graves claiming that these messages are authentic. Outside confession, there's no safe way out.

We are told that in the end even the elect will be deceived. The time is ripe with befuddlement and desperate for leadership. There were so many clues in the MDM messages that confirm fraud. Contradictions. Harsh language. Even problems with sentence structure and punctuation! Forget theological arguments: We live in an age dispossessed of doctrinal allegiance – at the highest levels!

Ultimately, it was the person of Mary Carberry that spoke to deceit.

This story extends beyond the pages of this short book. As I write, the Catholic Church-condemned 'seer' continues to report messages from 'Jesus.'

Our work continues. We are watchful.

Maria Divine Mercy: secret identity of ‘anonymous’ internet visionary revealed to be Dublin PR woman - by Mark Saseen

Posted July 25, 2014

Since her first claimed visit by the Virgin Mary and Jesus in November 2010, a woman who only identifies herself as “Maria Divine Mercy,” a “European business woman with children,” has gathered a following claimed to be in the millions. She may be the first totally unknown and totally internet ‘visionary’ to find her way into the minds and hearts of followers worldwide.

Her supporters claim her website that went online in March 2011 has exceeded 1.3 billion visits. A Swiss priest claims more than half German-speaking Swiss ‘have had some contact’ with her. A Nigerian pleads in Facebook postings for someone to address Maria’s millions of followers in her country, and rogue priests in the Philippines write in her defense. She is dividing families as she gathers her lot into a fragment church conditioned to dismiss the authority of the Catholic Church.

Five Catholic bishops have condemned her writings as heretical to church teaching. In April the Archdiocese of Dublin, Diarmuid Martin, put a stop to any notion that the ‘seer’ had any church standing. And that was the condemnation that matters. The archbishop was aware that the anonymous ‘seer’ was a resident of his diocese in the parish of St. Sylvester in the town of Malahide.

In November 2011, the website Reproach of Christ claimed the seer was Mary McGovern, a public relations/marketing business owner in Dublin. A week later MidwayStreet.Wordpress.com published a lengthy article on Mary McGovern as the secret behind Maria Divine Mercy. The site continues to publish new discoveries of her business and background.

The MidwayStreet article is the work of a team on international researchers who worked for more than a year to discover the ‘seer’s’ identity. While previous online discussion focused on the theology of the seer’s messages, MidwayStreet believed disclosures of her identity were a key to her authenticity.

<http://midwaystreet.wordpress.com/updates/>

Conclusion: fraud. Motivation: unknown. Surely, there was money to be made through the sale of “religious” trinkets associated with the claimed visions.

Although researchers had enough information to identify Mary McGovern – married name Carberry – as the ‘seer’s’ identity, a surprise February document by McGovern-Carberry’s German business associate Heinrich Martin Roth closed the case.

Written in German and posted on his website Herzmariens, Roth went on a 30-page tirade defending Mary Carberry against the charges made against her. Ironically, he provided researchers further confirmation of their claims. Roth and retired Irish dentist Breffni Cully are business partners of two Ireland-based companies associated with the visionary. Roth claimed that he did not benefit from income from the businesses that published four books related to Carberry’s ‘visions’ and “Mother of Salvation” medals. He said “Mary” was the “real owner.”

Defending Carberry as a true visionary incapable of faking the ‘messages,’ Roth wrote of German friends who visited Mary at her home. In the manner of automatic writing, Mary was able to write out answers to questions posed by the visitors that only the visitors would know.

An early indicator of the fraud was the identity of the ‘visionary’s’ spokesperson who has traveled to Australia, Canada, US and European countries promoting “Maria Divine Mercy.” Though using the name Joseph Gabriel, a photo of the speaker taken at a Chicago seminar matched that of Carberry’s business partner Breffni Cully taken at an Ireland wedding. In both he is wearing the same tie!

Mary Carberry made a tactical error in late 2011, about a year after her claimed first visits by Jesus and his mother Mary. She gave an interview to a US radio station. The administrator of MiraculousRosary.com posted a transcript. Within months of the broadcast, “Maria,” through her Facebook agents, was encouraging followers to ignore the interview and not reference or link to it.

The story goes on and is detailed at MidwayStreet. There was the claim of the miraculous cancer cure – that never was. The claim of having visited 12 priests – that do not exist. The claim that her anonymity is important to protect her children – who are all adults. It is a bizarre collection of vision-stuff gathered from many other sources and mixed with current events and end-time fears. And the who-would-believe-it connection with the convicted Australian pedophile William Kamm.

Good people have been scammed and hurt, and more good people continue to follow the visionary-du-jour, separating themselves from family and friends who remain unbelievers in the “last prophet of all time.”

Although a weekly US Catholic newspaper has connected Mary Carberry with Maria Divine Mercy, no major media has exposed her. It is a time bomb. The Carberry moment of glory will end soon.

Almost forgot to mention: Many readers may be familiar with a neighbor of Mary Carberry’s in the small community of Malahide: Christina Gallagher.

Letter from "Mary" to Ron Conte, Reproach of Christ,
1 November 2010

<http://www.catholicplanet.com/apparitions/pdf/Knock-email.pdf>
[With 'Mary's' typing errors.]

Ron I read a piece you wrote about Garabandal and other predictions relating to the Second Coming and felt you should be aware of the messages that Joe Coleman the visionary, mystic and seer that he is has been receiving since August 2009.

I am the second visionary. We both see Our Lady as well as her beloved son Jesus Christ. I also see a nun during the apparitions which I have been led to believe is Sister Faustina the Polish nun who are given a prayer of the Divine Mercy to prepare the world for the Second Coming back in the 1930's. Visions of St Philomena and St Bernadette have also occurred from time to time. They are becoming more pronounced and more frequent in recent weeks.

Neither of us knew each other in advance and come from different types of backgrounds and education. One this for sure is that the apparitions not only happened but many of them were witnessed by quite a few people. We receive messages every month. From the beginning Our Lady asked that we publish them. Joe has gone public - I manage the website but have not gone public because I don't have the courage to tell you the truth. Nor could I put my family through what Joe's family had to endure when he went public.

The Catholic Church have banned us from Knock in Co Mayo where the sun began to spin and shake in the sky after each apparition predicted in advance.

Neither of us have ever read the Bible (because as Catholics for some reason it is not taught in schools - yes this is true). Yet the messages received all relate to biblical prophecies which did not make sense in the beginning. but now, of course, they do.

Either way after a very tough year in which our lives have been turned upside down and inside out - ridiculed, laughed at, mocked and banned along with all the genuine believers from entering the Catholic Church in the grotto at Knock, the messages, are of huge significance for the world as the Second Coming of Christ is about to take place. No date has been given nor will it Our Lady says. But the time is very close now.

We have been given YEARS but not dates regarding the Second Coming.

The Tribulation has already started. The second half starts at the end of 2012/beginning of 2013 and will last four years until 2016. The 'Trinity Years' as the period was referred to by the Holy Spirit will last from 2013-2018 the sign of the beast 666. The first six relates to the one world economy. The second six relates to a new world leader - the anti-Christ and the last six relates to the abolition of all religions into one new false religion. Reference was also made to the lifting up into the clouds but it was not clear. It seems to refer to the year 2013 but we are not sure.

Visions have also been given to Joe about future events, places, cities, and islands which will all be destroyed. In your writing you have been accurate in one you predicted but we have not gone public with those visions because they would cause tremendous distress to people.

Global earthquakes, disasters and turmoil are unfortunately going to affect many many countries. GOD HELP US ALL. It is up to all believers to pray extremely hard for the unbelievers if they are to be saved.

We pray every day that we can spread the truth of the messages which are authentic. we have nothing to gain financially or otherwise from these messages. keep checking our site for more messages. the next apparition is on Sat. 6th November 2010. www.knockapparitions.com

Mary (cant give you my surname unfortunately)

NOTE:

Conte did not know the value of this communication until three years later - to the day - when he posted the name and address of the woman behind the 'visionary' who claimed the name Maria Divine Mercy. This is Carberry's first written statement claiming communication with Heaven. It seems she never expected this letter to reach the public. It was written as a defense of Joe Coleman. But Coleman does not support Carberry's claim to vision-power. He emailed a research team member regarding Carberry's claims, "The devil works in many ways to deceive people and keep them from the truth." Carberry also writes in the Conte letter that she too has had 'visions.' But at the time of this letter, Carberry's 'visions' had not yet begun, according to the 'official' story in the introduction to "The Book of Truth."

Introduction to "The Book of Truth" -- Vol. 1, 2012

Official history of the beginning of the messages

It was 3am on November 9th 2010 when Maria woke up suddenly. No sooner had she looked at the time, glowing in red from the digital clock beside her bed, did she become aware that her body felt different. She felt weightless and experienced a sizzling sensation in her stomach which seemed to travel all the way to her feet touching every nerve and every muscle.

Then switching on the bedside lamp a series of powerful emotions, both physical and spiritual, surged like an electrical current throughout her entire body. Confused and overwhelmed she sat up. She was immediately drawn to a picture of Jesus on the locker beside her bed.

The face in the image began to change. It became lifelike. To her amazement the image of Jesus smiled at her and His lips began to move as if he was speaking. His face was animated, with various expressions of tenderness, concern and compassion infused throughout the image. Although she could not hear His voice she knew, instinctively, that He wanted to communicate with her.

She knew immediately, that this was a divine presence. Paradoxically, she felt a soothing calmness which was at odds with the somewhat surreal atmosphere in the room. Trembling, as the tears poured down her face, she became like a small child before him. And then she had this powerful urge to write down what she knew Jesus was telling her.

At the back of her mind came the realization that a door had just opened. A switch had been turned on and that there was no going back.

Grabbing an old envelope and plucking a pen beside her bed the words began to form in her mind.

She wrote down what she heard as it was dictated to her in a gentle but authoritative manner. Each word was formed, clearly, precisely and without pause as her pen touched the paper.

The first words she wrote were "Your Will is my command". Without understanding why she wrote this she knew, in her heart, that it was a natural and spontaneous response. Somehow she knew that she was supposed to write this first. And then came the first message given to her by Jesus Christ.

The message, dictated to her, contained 745 words and it took her exactly 7 minutes to write the message down word for word from beginning to end.

The following morning, in the cold light of day, she was overcome with a sense of unreality. With a sinking feeling she knew that what had happened during the night was very real. And so she read the message. Trembling with shock and disbelief the tears flowed as the truth began to sink in.

An intelligent woman, Maria, a mother of four children, led a busy and fulfilled life. Used to dealing with the many challenges of day to day business, she would have been the first to dismiss such claims. Yet, she knew in her heart that not only was she not imagining the message but that she would never have the capacity to produce a script like this.

Nervously she picked up the picture of Jesus again and looked at it. Waiting. Challenging the picture to move again. And it did. This time she cried, pleaded with Jesus to give her a sign as to whether the whole thing was in her imagination.

It was 11am. The picture changed like before, and the face of Jesus came to life again. He was dressed in white with a gold trim around his neck. His face was long and thin. He had reddish brown wavy hair to his shoulder, piercing blue eyes and was surrounded by a dazzling penetrating light.

This light, Maria says, is very strong and drains you of energy. He looked at her tenderly, with concern, compassion and a deep abiding love. Then He smiled.

Her body experienced the same sizzling, weightless feeling again. She wrote down the next message, a private one. Much shorter than the night before. This time Jesus told her not to be frightened. That, yes, He was communicating with her. He urged her not to run away and to be strong. He reassured her that she was not imagining it.

And so the messages began although Maria, in the beginning, had no idea what they were about or what they meant. She was very frightened at the public reaction to such messages and was relieved when Jesus told her he wanted her to remain hidden for many reasons.

As the truth slowly dawned on her that the messages, were in fact authentic, although she privately hoped that they wouldn't be, she assumed that she was another visionary, another seer.

This was not the case. Jesus eventually told her who she was. He told her she was the end time prophet [a term she had never heard of before] and that she had not been chosen. She had been sent as the 7th Messenger to communicate, on behalf of Jesus, the seals contained in the Book of Revelation to prepare the world for His Second Coming.

Since then she has received a message almost daily from Jesus Christ. Some of the messages are given to her by the Virgin Mary, the Mother God who has given Maria a new title by which she wishes to be known, the Mother of Salvation.

The first message she received from God the Father was in June 2011. Just before she received this message she was given a message by the Holy Spirit who announced that God the Father wished to communicate with her.

She trembled through out the taking down of this message, not because she was frightened but because of His power and the pure love He has for the whole of humanity. He explained to her why He created the world in the first place. It was so He could have a family.

Maria is a Roman Catholic but says, that up to the time she received the messages, she was a lukewarm practitioner. She believed in God but she was not devout in the traditional sense. However in the months leading up to the first message she had experienced a spiritual renewal and had witnessed private apparitions of the Virgin Mary although she kept this to herself.

As a result of the apparitions she began to pray more and recite the Holy Rosary. It was while reciting the Rosary before a statue of Our Lady on the 8th November 2010 that Our Lady gave her a message, which she wrote down, but had no idea what it meant.

Maria has been told that the Second Coming of Christ is imminent and that she is the last messenger, the last prophet. She has been told she is the 7th Messenger, the 7th angel, who will announce to the world the contents of the Seals in the Book of Revelation as they are opened by the Lamb of God, Jesus Christ.

The messages given to her, comprise "The Book of Truth," foretold in the Book of Daniel for the end times.

They are being given to the world to help spread conversion so that all of God's children can be saved from the antichrist who is due to appear in the world shortly.

God she says wants to save everyone, including hardened sinners. All those saved will enter into a New Paradise on Earth where we will have a mind, body and soul. They will live in splendour, love, peace, harmony and will want for nothing. This is the inheritance which God has promised all of his children.

It will surpass anything we could ever imagine she says but only those who turn to God and ask for forgiveness can enter.

They will have eternal life.

If they reject God they will be thrown into the fires of Hell with the antichrist, the false prophet and all those who follow Satan.

And we don't have much time.

NOTE: Certainly Mary Carberry did not expect anyone to compare this narrative with her spoken radio interview a year before, or with Breffni Cully's seminar comments a year later, or with her late-discovered comments at the Mother of God online forum. A true story would be consistently told without contradiction, but there are many contradictions among the various 'tellings.' This narrative adds "intelligent" to Carberry's qualities. But this story, likely written by Carberry herself, is amateurish and silly. In emailed communication with her Facebook allies she claims to have no free will and the ability to read souls.

Hello everyone. I am Maria. The European Seer of thewarningsecondcoming.com

I would like to say a few things. These messages are authentic. I did not invent them. I never asked Jesus for this work. I am certainly unworthy and was not a very religious person beforehand. But Jesus loves sinners and likes a challenge. I have no interest in getting attention or generating any kind of revenue from this. the most important thing is the Jesus loves us all with such a deep abiding passion that it is quite unlike anything we could ever imagine. I see him and his Blessed Mother through private apparitions and inner locutions. The Warning is going to take place within a few months now. So prepare all of you. These are the words of Jesus Christ. so I would ask you to humbly pray before you pull his most Holy Word apart.

Prophecies revealed to me are already happening. The Catholic Church were given all these details in advance. The earthquake in Spain and Volcano eruption in Iceland happened exactly as I was told. Three world leaders - one from mainland Europe and two from the middle east will be killed within a month. When they happen I would ask you then to accept the truth and bow your heads. Our Lord told me that his most holy word would be ridiculed, mocked, scorned. Just as he was mocked when on earth his true word, via the authentic visionaries, will also be mocked.

God Bless you all. Maria

FOR RAIN. FROM MARIA. ANSWER YES I DO.

My mental welfare is not an issue. I am a full time professional businesswoman and well known. Because of that I cannot go public because as the only bread winner in my family I would lose everything. My work involves very detailed analytical thinking and I am not prone to imaginative outbursts. which is why I questioned and questioned these messages right from the start. I contacted my priest known to me for 20 years the following day and communicate with the various catholic priests with whom i have had to place myself. i was more than willing to have all these messages evaluated by people in the know i.e. theologians because I hadn't a clue about theology, Catholic teachings, apparitions. I am also ashamed to admit I did not know how to say the Rosary, never heard of the Divine Mercy nor could I recite an act of contrition because the last time I went to confession was over 25 years ago. So my mental state i.e. desperately seeking or craving an outlet due to something 'lacking' in my life is not in question. And that is why I suppose a formal investigation has been launched by the Catholic Church. I do not want any personal attention although people are right to ask who is this woman.

My conversion as a result of receiving these message has been extraordinary. My spiritual director was Jesus while one priest would run away from the work and place another in his place and so it went on until finally I was sent a spritual director from Jesus himself and am in excellent hands. I am not personally insulted when people question me or the messages because I would have treated someone like me in exactly the same way had they come to me with such utterances. I realise too that my discernment may not be fully accurate which is why I would not publish the names of locations of the earthquake and volcano in case it was wrong. But the priests had this and take this seriously now.

THE MESSAGES come from his Divine Lips. His messages are full of love, sorrow, anger and quite often he gets angry with me if i disobey him in any way. Holy people who have phoned me have told me of the sizzling weak feeling that comes over them when in conversation. Other people have asked me for special prayers and they have been answered. Other people have asked me to ask him questions. And without knowing them I have given them answers that only they would understand But this is not about fortune telling. It is about spreading the word so that his precious souls can be saved. He is so upset at the thoughts of losing sinners to see him with tears flowing down his cheeks would tear you apart. you will all know soon the truth of his word. God Bless You all. Maria

Padraig thank you. I was not upset that people did not believe in me but because His word is being questioned. I really should not do this because He does not want me to engage actively in defending his word on the internet and especailly not to explain his messages because I am not qualified to do that.

I have been to a number of apparition sites including Medjugorje, Knock in Ireland as well as others since the first apparition. Our Lady told me to go the above two sites because she said she appears there regularly and is showing signs to all her children now at these two shrines.

My background is busy entrepreneur, mother of four, lived the high life, travelled all over the world, mixed with business people at the top of their profession in London, US and other parts of Europe. So I am definitely not the type you would expect to be receiving these messages. I have been overwhelmed, stunned, terrified but weak with love for both Our Blessed Mother with whom I have regular communications and see her clearly and our dear Lord Jesus Christ. The whole experience has been extraordinary but lonely. Outside my immediate circle of friends - many of whom I have now met only through this work I cannot talk about it only to the priests. Certainly people in my other life would never understand this. My old life has changed also because of the work because I no longer find any comfort in it nor any love of material things. In the past I would have viewed people who believed in apparitions to be deluded. How wrong I was. Try and keep me in your prayers because I have been under serious attack from The Deceiver who has pinned me down in my bed at night, shouted the most vile curses at me and so forth. I am being protected daily, however, with God's blessing by St Benedict. I see him all the time during the apparitions. GOD BLESS KEEP IN TOUCH MARIA

Your comments make me so sad. No one is forcing you to believe these messages. I will leave it at that.

I pray for all of you because the truth is often very difficult to digest so it is not always full of the joy that you would expect.

God bless all of you. I will not be visiting the forum again for I have been forbidden to do so. I hope some day when the truth is revealed to you all you will understand. I pray for all of you and I hope you will pray for me. The next prophecy will be revealed by this Sunday. GOD BLESS ALL OF YOU. I WILL NOT BOTHER YOU AGAIN. MARIA

NOTE: These forum comments are significant as the first 'discoverable' statements from Carberry posing as 'Maria Divine Mercy.' The entity that forbids Carberry from visiting the forum is supposedly 'Jesus.' She never again appears on public forums.

William Kamm's letter to Saseen
Dated 8 July 2014 - Received July 23

Dear Saseen –

Greetings – it was lovely hearing from you – via the iExpress – you are the first, thank you. I would be happy to correspond with you and answer your questions if I can.

Please continue to write to me via Justice Action as it will be forwarded to me, as they are very supportive, however I am closing my e-mail because the media have once again attacked me via this avenue- also attaching J.A. for the good work they do.

However here is the answer to your question.

I have known about Maria-Divine Mercy since 2011, as I have a similar gift from God as she does – in my case I have had mystical experience – e.g. visions since the age of 16. Many people have them, the modern world calls them clairvoyance. My visions of Jesus and Mary are public knowledge – Pope JPII supported me privately, I have worked with over 300 such mystics for over 40 years from all over the world. When I heard about (Maria) I asked Jesus – He told me she was sent by Him. I contacted her and Jesus told her it was like her. She has her mission and I have mine, many of her messages are similar to the ones I have received since 1984. We sometimes get identical messages around the same dates. I believe in her 100 % -- even though some of her messages seem to contradict my messages as well as hundreds of other visionaries. However in many cases there remains a hidden meaning – so we simply leave that to God because with time all will be understood.

Saseen would you explain to me the reason you asked me this question? Do you have doubts about her! And how do you know of my support of MDM as I did not reveal this in my iExpress? Check my YouTube it may help you to know who I am.

I hope this answers some things. I wish God's Blessings on you.

William

Dear Justice Action Management, thank you for sending me this letter e-mail – from Saseen. As all of this was made possible through your organization, I can not allow the cost of the set up iExpress – the mailing, etc. be upon yourself – I would like to help you in some way. Thank you.

William

On a public-viewable social media page he said in childlike fashion, "I am a commercial artist and I have thousands of stock images. The red seal is one of my stock images which existed years before any of this stuff hit the fan. The red seal is a decoration and has no more power than your FB avatar (duh)." He was asked if he made money on the seal: "I'm a commercial artist. That's what I do." Continuing his online discourse: "If you want me to defend MDM, you'll have to pay me."

³⁴ Researchers suspect the change from Ireland to UK-based companies stems from a letter to Ireland's State Revenue Collection Department accusing the MDM companies of potential fraud and suggesting the companies be investigated.

³⁵ David was employed full time as a web designer for Mary Carberry's firm, Future Media, during her first year of claimed 'visions.'

³⁶ In November 2014 the medals were selling in smaller increments of five with added shipping cost. An incentive to compensate for slow sales?

³⁷ Lay My Hat Forum: Posting begins with: "Fellow B&B owners--I recently had an enquiry from one Breffni Cully - eventually I turned him down for prevaricating over paying a deposit. Yesterday he tried to book again, using a different email and address."

⁴² "PR venture a window to virtual world," 16 April 2009, Irish Independent. In 2014 "Luke" responds to an inquiry regarding the company's relationship with McGovern PR: "Our relationship ended with the company in 2009."

⁴³ The Future Media website disappears and reappears. No names of employees or owners. Inquiries sent through the email address are not responded. A call to the listed phone number was unanswered.

⁴⁴ In November 2013 researchers found a message reportedly issued by Kamm in 2004, a year before his prison sentence. It is cited at wanglese.comxa.com:

"William John Costellia is the true name of William Kamm, who is also known as the 'Little Pebble.' William enquired about his natural father and discovered that he was a soldier in the Italian Army when he met William's mother.

Gertrude Kamm (Simons) in Cologne, Germany. John left Germany for Italy, never to return, and he was unaware that Gertrude had conceived his child. John Costellia was born in Sicily and it was only two years ago that William became aware of his lineage...William is half German and half Italian."

⁴⁵ State Parole Authority, New South Wales, Australia, media statement, "Sex offender 'Little Pebble' to be refused parole...convicted of repeated sex offences against minors...five counts of sexual intercourse with a minor...four counts of aggravated indecent assault against a minor and one count of aggravated indecent assault...remains an untreated sex offender..."

⁴⁷ Malcolm Broussard was ordained a priest in Houston, Texas, in 1978. He was excommunicated from the Catholic Church in June 2003 for attempting to have himself consecrated as a bishop without papal consent. On 15 September 2005 Pope Benedict XVI decreed that Broussard "may no longer present himself as a priest or perform any priestly functions." From Wikipedia: Illegal episcopal ordination: Kamm's order is sacramentally cared for by a former diocesan parish priest from Texas, Malcolm Broussard, who in 2003 was consecrated a bishop in Bavaria. This episcopal ordination was not authorized by the Roman Catholic Church and resulted in his automatic excommunication. Broussard had already been suspended, on 20 September 1989, for abandoning his priestly assignment and was not a priest "in good standing." Broussard has ordained many of the men in the group to the priesthood, most of them not taking the traditional promise of clerical celibacy. He ordained Kamm as a deacon in 2003.

⁴⁸ 'Maria's' complete statement regarding 'Marie-Paul' was posted by the Canadian Facebook administrator who made the original inquiry. 'Maria' emailed, somewhat incoherently:

"I have received a message from Jesus. He is a good man. However whether or not he is a real priest I don't know. I do know that Jesus has told me 'HE IS A GOOD MAN' and that 'HIS CONTRIBUTION WAS IMPORTANT.' [Caps are 'Maria's'] That is all as it is best that I don't get too involved. I am worried that he has been ousted in this way. I do accept that some people have to be pushed out because they completely undermine the messages. But this man did not. In fact he added great credibility to the messages. I was sad to see him go and I miss his posts! God Bless Maria"

⁴⁹ Researchers suspect the 'visionary' who provided Sabalasky/Marie-Paul with this disclosure was Sabalasky himself. His anti-Christ revelations appeared at his Biblical-False-Prophet website.

⁵⁰ Sabalasky's document was originally released 6 September 2005 and later updated 17 October 2005. On 9 November 2013 he was 'consecrated' a 'bishop' in Canada by Kamm's 'bishop' Malcolm Broussard, as "Bishop John Paul Sabalasky." He uses the "John Paul" name in online forums. The announcement of Sabalasky elevation in the Church-condemned order was made by Broussard in an email to friends. Sabalasky's father, who died in 1996 at age 76, was a volunteer worker in Kamm's Marian Workers of Atonement, part of the Order of St. Charbel. In the father's obituary, Bruce is listed as an only son married to Laura of Naperville, Illinois, US. So the 'priest-bishop' may be married, or once married.

⁵¹ "Religious Sex Fiend Asks Psychic's Aid," Courier mail.com.au, 2 January 2011, Kamm's "right hand man" Malcolm Broussard sent the email on Kamm's behalf.

⁵² Ralph Napierski is one of the most sinister characters in this story. At cult-exposing website Dialogue Ireland, "Margaret" comments in July 2013: "I know Ralph Napierski very well, especially his antics. German police said that he is NOT a resident of Germany and only has a postal address and answering machine service there. He is Polish, has a girlfriend and a little boy. Secondly, he promotes sex toys in marriages and the BDSM industry. He has been photographed with nude sex workers, Third Reichers, other false clergy connected to William Kamm; is allegedly selling fake relics for US $150 each with a fake certificate; now calls himself "The Prophet" and is promoting MDM who has been declared a false prophet by the Vatican and declares God sent him to reveal that Pope Francis is the anti-Christ when in fact he certainly is NOT. Napierski has built machines that read a person's mind and sold it to the military; has hacked many sites including eBay; is a spiritual vampire who practices Jesus Yoga (Yoga is condemned by our Vatican exorcist). I also know of two cases where he has implanted thoughts into people's minds and used his psychic ability to affect these two people. He is NOT a mystic, he is a psychic and ruled by the hand of the Devil." --dialogueireland.wordpress.com/2013/05/23

⁵³ For a time, researchers examined the curious use of excessive comma's in both the MDM 'visions' and Christine Lammermann's writing. For the German-born Lammermann, English is a second language, so mistakes in punctuation are understandable. For MDM/Carberry, the transcriber of 'Jesus' messages, the mis-use of punctuation is careless.

⁵⁴ The incident was reported at wanglese.comxa.com/Bayside.htm

⁵⁵ In a "Letter from the Little Pebble to Maria Divine Mercy, 17 May 2013, Kamm addresses "My Dear Little Sister Maria..." and thanks her "for all the answers

Jesus has given to you for me." The letter is included in a newsletter issued by Kamm's 'bishop,' Malcolm Broussard.

⁵⁶ The German researcher referred to here had been working independently for a year before contact was made with the core team that provided research for this book. His discovery of the Kamm connection coincided with conclusions of the research team that Kamm was an instrumental component of the MDM enterprise.

⁵⁷ Malcolm Broussard was the subject of a formal notarized "decree" by Australian Bishop Peter Wingham who wrote that Broussard's attempt to have himself consecrated a bishop was a schismatic and excommunicated Broussard and all those of the Order of St. Charbel. The excommunication applied to all who adhere formally to Broussard's ministry. "...They place themselves outside the Catholic Church and are by that fact excommunicated." The Decree was issued 10 June 2003.

⁵⁸ 12 November 2010: "My daughter, you can publish this 'in conversation with the secret prophet.' 'Messages began only three days before. No other reference is made of the 'secret prophet.'"

⁵⁹ "Social Networking to Be Available to Inmates," Illawarra Mercury, 22 June 2014

⁶⁰ A frequent commenter at anti-MDM websites who uses the name PocketSketch created a list of Geilesky's statements, and then surprised readers that they were not from MDM, but from the Australian 'visionary.' Geilesky, like Kamm and many other 'visionaries', became wealthy from their claim to visions. The Australian Sunday Mail, 8 December 2004, reported that the 'cult' leader accepted a $600,000 property loan provided by a US couple that she refused to repay.

⁶¹ In Switzerland a key MDM promoter is Dr. Gerd J Weisensee who has confessed to friends that Maria Divine Mercy is Mary Carberry. His Catholic contacts helped to promote MDM in Switzerland.

⁶³ In November 2014 Roth closed his Herz mariens.de website. He posted: "The website www.herz mariens.de is closed from now on. Reason: Due to my being involved in the mission "the book of truth" everything that is written in herz mariens.de may lead to attacks on the mission "the book of truth." To protect this mission, I now have to close www.herzmariens.de. So with immediate effect, I am no longer responsible for the content of this site!!"

⁶⁴ Of course, this makes no sense. Roth writes that he "believes" Cully does not profit from MDM. Roth admits his financial involvement is fraudulent!

⁶⁶ Dexter Duggan, "Maria Divine Mercy Has No Ecclesiastical Approval," Wanderer Press, 29 May 2014. The article quotes MidwayStreet and its author.

⁶⁸ The recurrence of 3 a.m. and 3 p.m. in this story has significance as 3 p.m. is the time at which Christ is believed to have died on the cross. Carberry knows its value and significance to her followers while claiming to be an ignorant "lapsed" Catholic.
